New Rule Formed

Dominican Junta Makes Move For Popular Support

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP) — The three man military junta opposed to the rebel regime of Col. Francisco Caamano Deno resigned Friday night in what appeared to be a bid for popular support by the antirebel forces.

The triumvirate gave way to a new civilian military junta of five men calling themselves a "government of national reconstruction." It is headed by Gen. Antonio Imbert, one of the military officers opposing Coamano's leftist rebels.

The surprise move came as Caamano asserted his forces spoke for the Dominican Republic as its legitimate government. He protested that he had not been consulted about bringing an inter-American police force to supervise the uneasy ceasefire.

FOUGHT TRUJILLO

Imbert, 44, is one of two survivors of the band of plotters who ambushed and killed Generalissimo Rafael L. Trujillo in 1961.

Called "Tony," Imbert was a long-time friend and former political associate of ousted President Juan Bosch, whom Imbert helped overthrow in 1963.

Creation of the new five-man group capped a day of relative quiet, with only the occasional sound of a sniper's rifle breaking the calm that settled over Santo Domingo.

It was not clear what effect the new five-man group would have on the civil war between Caamano's rebels and the forces of Gen. Elias Wessin y Wessin, who installed the now resigned three-man military junta. Both sides seemed to be observing the cease-fire agreed upon Wednesday.

Caamano had said the rebel forces will accept no coalition government formula involving the military junta.

"We could not do this, not after defending the constitution at the cost of nearly a thousand lives," Caamano added.

Concerning the inter-American police force, Caamano told a jammed news conference that, "We would prefer no interventionist forces of any kind."

The young, balding colonel did not say, however, what official position his regime would take if the force, organized by the Organization of American States, came to Santo Domingo.

OAS Studies Possibilities For Election

WASHINGTON (AP) — A program looking to free elections in the Dominican Republic within 60 days was taking shape here Friday.

The organization of American States is considering the unprecedented appointment of three prominent Latin Americans as special commissioners who would be charged with restoration of constitutional government to the Caribbean nation which has been torn by revolt for two weeks.

TWO - SIDED AIMS

One aim of the proposal is to enable the United States to withdraw its troops from the island where they were sent 10 days ago to protect American lives and to prevent a Communist power seizure.

The OAS early Thursday committed itself to a military role in assisting the United States to maintain order in the Dominican Republic. But so far no hemipshere forces have moved in to join the 19,000-plus American troops.

There was no immediate, official U.S. reaction to the new OAS program but the American government is avowedly eager to disengage itself from the island as soon as it can be assured that law and order have been restored and that Communists have been blocked from a takeover.

The three men understood to be the choice of the OAS for the difficult Dominican job all are experienced administrators with records of social reform and are regarded as strongly anti-Communist and against dictatorship.

They are former President Romulo Betancourt of Venezuela, former Gov. Luis Munoz Marin of Puerto Rico and former President Jose Figueres of Costa Rica.

All three now are in Washington. Munoz Marin and Beatencourt both have conferred with President Johnson recently and all three have seen Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey.

The three have not yet accepted the task but the feeling among Latin-American diplomats is that they would not refuse an OAS call.

They all know the Dominican leaders and the psychology of the people involved.

Under the plan being discussed, the three commissioners would help the Dominicans to hold the election, acting as referees in any problem which might arise.

Revisions Made To Cut Costs Of Civic Center

Mayor W. L. (Jack) Howard said Friday night the city should enjoy a reduction in costs on the civic center complex with recommendations made by electrical inspector William Hines.

Howard said Hines made recommendations for changes in the electrical system at a meeting Friday with architect Jack Neel and electrical engineer D. F. Burkhalter Jr.

"I am really pleased tonight with the progress that is being made toward revising certain items in the civic center complex plans, which we believe will reduce substantially the cost of the projects," Howard said.

He added, "These changes will not affect the appearance or the functional ability of the buildings."

The city council, at a special session Thursday, threw out five bids on the civic center, exhibition hall and theater because the bids were too high.

"One of the areas that's being concentrated on for a savings is the electrical system, since the bids were approximately 100 per cent over the estimates made by the electrical engineer," Howard said.

He explained, "Today the city's electrical inspector, Bill Hines, a man of many years experience, met with architect Jack Neel and Red Burkhalter, the electrical engineer. Mr. Hines recommended changes in the electrical system. It is believed a considerable savings will be enjoyed by Mr. Hines' recommendations."

He also said, that engineers from the Utilities Commission had been called in to work with Hines and Neel on the electrical distribution system of the three buildings.

Howard said the council would meet Monday afternoon with the architects before Tuesday's regular session.

He explained the council hoped to readvertise for new bids Tuesday.

U.S. Jets Hit Red Targets; Troops Land

Seabees Arrive For Construction Of New Air Base

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — The United States hit North Viet Nam With 81 jet planes and poured 6,000 more servicemen into the Vietnamese war Friday, the 11th anniversary of the communist victory over France at Dien Bien Phu.

Forty-one U.S. Air Force F105 fighter-bombers and 40 fighters opened the fourth month of air attacks north of the border with raids on bridges and barracks.

BRIDGE USELESS

The main target was the Thanh Hoa highway and railroad bridge 80 miles south of Hanoi. A spokesman said this bridge, hit in two previous raids, was left standing but unusable because of heavy damage to its approaches.

For the first time since April 21, American authorities announced the loss of a plane to North Vietnamese fire. One of the F105s was shot down at sea. The pilot was rescued by an amphibious craft. The announced American losses now are 17 Navy and 15 Air Force planes.

Barges operating from the U.S. 7th Fleet landed 3,000 Marines and 3,000 Seabees on a beach at Chu Lai, 52 miles south of Da Nang, that a U.S. Army adviser called "the edge of the real heartland of the Viet Cong." Vietnamese troops had cleared the area of guerrillas and not a shot was fired in the landing.

The seabees started work at once on an aluminum-based, 4,000-foot airstrip that they expected to have operating within 72 hours after the last of the equipment was ferried ashore.

Along Waikiki Beach

WWII Fighter Pilot Tries Out Old Skill

HONOLULU (AP) — Police said a former fighter pilot stole a World War II B25 bomber at Honolulu's airport in the predawn darkness Friday and roared at the level of palm trees across Waikiki Beach. He narrowly missed some swank beach hotels.

The old Billy Mitchell bomber, which had been used for a Hollywood film, struck a radio tower, ripped a gash in its fuselage and smashed the glass bubble for its turret gun.

The pilot, his cheek cut by glass from the shattered bubble, was arrested after giving the airport tower a scare before making a precarious landing.

The Federal Aviation Agency identified him as James A. Ashdown, 34, an advertising salesman.

"I just had an urge to fly again", Ashdown was quoted by police Detective Jacob Yoon.

Ashdown was charged with plane theft.

Residents frightened by the 1:30 a.m. flight swamped the police department's telephones.

Police said people at Waikiki were "frightened out of their skins" as the plane roared down Kalakaua Avenue toward the 25-floor Foster Towers Hotel.

A Waikiki policeman frantically radioed headquarters that the plane was below the level of the hotel roof, narrowly missed a crash, banked and zoomed over the beach alongside the Moana-Surfrider Hotel in the heart of Waikiki.

"He was just about clipping the tops of the palm trees," one shaking witness reported.

The bomber then roared along the coastline.

At Waipahu, 30 miles northwest of Honolulu, it snapped 20 feet of a 110-foot wooden utility pole of radio station KAHU.

The return to the airport really gave officials a scare.

"He was headed right into the tower," said Gil McCoy, FAA information officer.

"We thought he was coming through the glass but then he pulled out and came in for a landing."

The B25, owned by Frederick Pack Associates, was used in filming a book "In Harm's Way." Ashdown formerly worked for the plane's owner.

"I don't see how he didn't hit something else and kill himself and who knows how many more," a policeman said.

The flight caused airport confusion.

13 Left Dead In Twisters' Ripping Path

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — President Johnson on Friday declared tornado ravaged areas of Minnesota a disaster area, as the death toll from a series of twisters Thursday mounted to 13.

About 400 persons were injured and the damage was estimated at $10 million by the Insurance Information Institute, a public information agency operated by insurance companies.

The deadly funnels that struck the Twin Cities and suburban areas completed a devastating cycle of nature that has ringed the area with death and destruction in the past few months.

FLOOD TAKES

Twelve persons died in floods that inundated areas along the southern and eastern fringes of the Minneapolis metropolitan area less than a month ago.

The twisters struck three major areas to the west and north of the cities.

Hundreds were injured by the twisters and property damage will run into the millions of dollars.

Residents who huddled Thursday night in the shelter of their basements were, only weeks ago, piling sandbags on dikes as record floodwaters poured through residential and industrial areas. About 21,000 were driven from their homes, and damage was estimated at $88 million in the floods.

The floods followed severe cold, near-record snowfall that paralyzed the state in March, and a crippling early March sleet storm that helped build the flood crests.

The Weather Bureau said at least six tornado funnels skipped across the area, causing major damage in three general areas.

Hundreds of homes were destroyed, hundreds more had major damage.

Among those who escaped with only minor injuries when the odds were against him was Vincent E. Bernard, 25, Mound, Minn. He was driving his small foreign car in Island Park, 30 miles west of Minneapolis, when a funnel hit him.

The car was lifted and hurled more than 100 yards out into Lake Minnetonka, then sank in about 25 feet of water. Bernard crawled out a window and swam to shore. He suffered cuts and bruises.

Liberals' Plan Next Obstacle In Voting Fight

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate leaders, confident they had taken the steam out of Southern opposition to the voting rights bill, turned their fire Friday on a pending battle with a "liberal bloc" attempting to write a poll tax ban into the bill.

The showdown will come at 1 p.m. EDT Tuesday on an amendment by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., and 38 other senators. The amendment states that Congress finds it necessary to abolish all remaining state poll taxes to assure voting rights to Negroes.

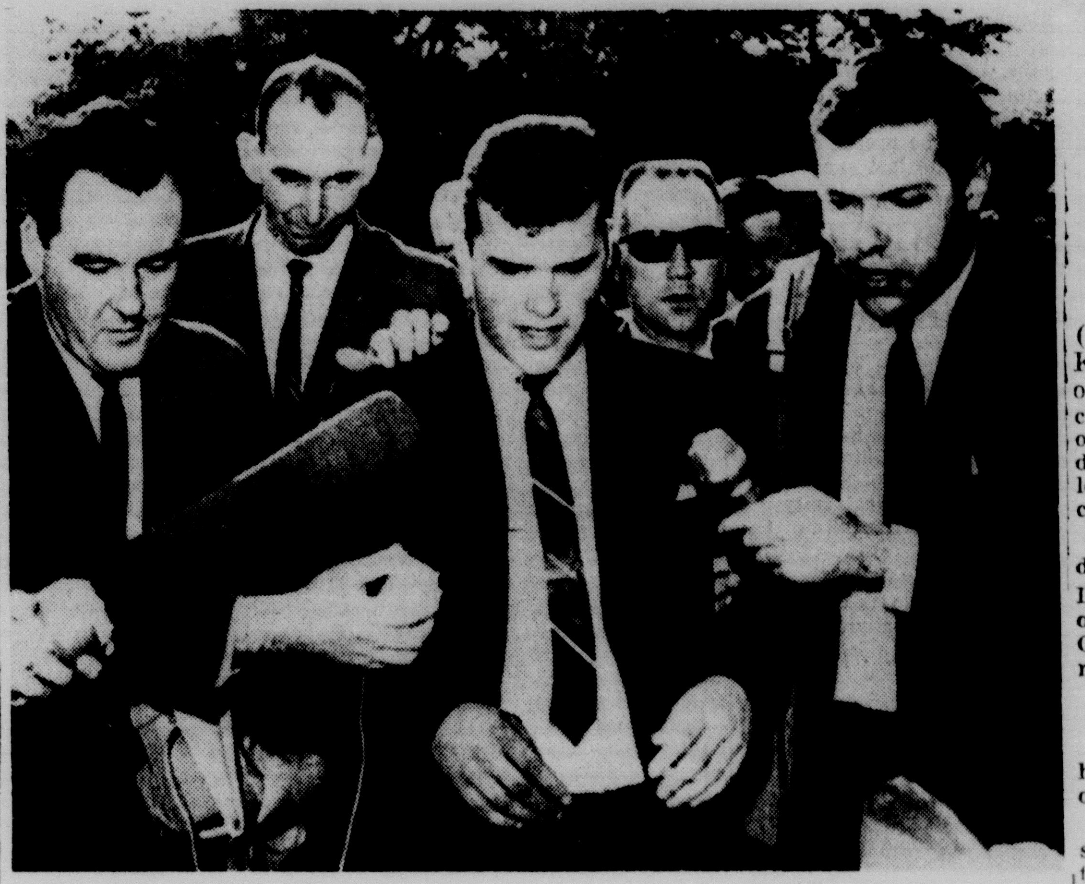
Kennedy and Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield, Mont., took the floor Friday to argue it out.

Kennedy admitted under questioning from Sen. George D. Aiken, R-Vt., that his amendment would ban Vermont's $1 annual poll tax as well as the poll taxes for state and local elections in Mississippi, Alabama, Virginia and Texas. Aiken did not like it.

Mansfield read a letter from Atty. Gen. Nicholas Katzenbach arguing that there are "constitutional risks in the Kennedy amendment."

Mansfield and Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen, Ill. said the Senate's 64-25 rejection Thursday of a Southern-sponsored amendment that would have scuttled the "triggering" section of the voting rights bill may have ended plans by Southern senators to fight a delaying action.

Jury In Liuzzo Case Fails To Change Divided Opinion



COLLIE WILKINS, JR. (Center) says no comment to questions of newsmen after his trial ended in a locked jury and mistrial in Hayneville, Ala., Friday. He was on trial for the slaying of civil rights worker Mrs. Viola Liuzzo of Detroit (AP Wirephoto)

Two Holdouts Say Witness Broke Oath

HAYNEVILLE, Ala. (AP) — A young Ku Klux Klansman, by the margin of two jury votes, escaped conviction Friday in the slaying of a white woman civil rights demonstrator. The jury deadlocked 10 - 2 and was discharged.

Thus ended the five-day, first-degree murder trial of Collie Leroy Wilkins Jr., 21, accused of the slaying March 25 of Viola Gregg Liuzzo, 39, a Detroit mother of five children.

NEW TRIAL EXPECTED

The jury of white men had held the power of life or death over Wilkins for 24 hours.

The state was expected to seek Wilkins' retrial in the September term of Lowndes County Circuit Court, in this sleepy hamlet a dozen miles from the scene of Mrs. Liuzzo's slaying.

The two holdout jurors who voted for acquitted said they did so because an undercover FBI informer within the Klan violated his oath to the hooded order by turning star witness for the prosecution. Both jurors denied Klan affiliation.

Jury foreman Clifford McMurphy, a pipe-smoking farmer with a placid appearance and a soft voice, told newsmen: "Each member of the jury assessed the evidence with a different pair of eyes. I don't believe there was any racial prejudice or sectional feeling in this decision. I don't believe any man in that jury room was affected or persuaded by the affiliations of anyone on either side."

Wilkins' lawyer, Matt H. Murphy Jr., blamed himself for failing to win an acquittal.

"I tried to win without putting the defendant on the stand," he said.

Wilkins himself took the jury's failure to reach a verdict without any show of emotion. He slumped slightly in his chair and reached for a cigarette, with the habit-gesture of a chain smoker.

His middle-aged parents in courtroom seats nearby seemed relieved.

Nor was there any reaction from spectators in the partly filled courtroom, made oven-like by the humid heat of an Alabama spring day. In front of the two-story white courthouse, a green square centered by a Confederate monument lay all but deserted in the bright sunlight.

McMurphy told Circuit Judge T. Werth Thagard at the climax of the long jury deliberation that the first ballot was 8-4 for conviction after the jury got the case at 3:40 p.m. Thursday.

He did not say whether the majority was agreed on a first-degree murder charge, as asked by the state, or on a lesser homicide charge which the court outlined as an alternative.

Edmund Sallee, a farmer who was one of the jurors and voted for conviction, said: "It would have had to be on manslaughter because we could not have come that near to a conviction at all on any higher charge."

Manslaughter carries a penalty of one to 10 years in Alabama.

Asked about the effect upon the jury of defense attorney Murphy's remarks on racial prejudice, Sallee replied: "I think a great many of us were insulted to a great extent and he must have thought we were very, very ignorant to be taken in by that act."

House Splits With Senate On Aid Issue

WASHINGTON (AP) — Clashing with its Senate counterpart, the House Foreign Affairs Committee said Friday "The basic structure of our foreign aid program is sound and should not be drastically revised."

NEW WAY ASKED

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee had included in its version of the aid authorization bill a mandate for the Johnson administration to submit a new approach to foreign aid by the middle of next year. The present aid program would end a year later to be replaced by a new formula worked out by a 12-member special planning committee.

The House report, published Friday night and designed to accompany its own $3.37-billion aid authorization when it reaches the House floor, poured ice water on the special committee idea, saying: "We cannot agree that it would be desirable, or possible, to terminate the program in the near future. Nor do we believe that it is advisable to establish a commission, no matter how distinguished its membership, to undertake still another survey of foreign aid.

"The fact is that many surveys have been made over a period of years.

"None of these surveys nor the executive branch has recommended a dramatic departure from the program as it currently is structured."

Sen. J.W. Fulbright, D-Ark., chairman of the Senate committee, believes that the economic aid and military assistance portions of the bill should be separated.

The House committee said it has "concluded that the military supporting assistance and economic portions of the program are interdependent. In the opinion of the committee, they cannot be divided without the prospect of some harm being done the over-all program and our foreign policy."

Freighter Sinks

3 Crewmen Dead In Ship Collision

MACKINAW CITY, Mich. (AP) — The freighter Cedarville of the U.S. Steel Corp. rolled over and sank in the fog shrouded Straits of Mackinac on Friday after a collision with a Norwegian vessel.

At least three members of the Cedarville's crew of 35 lost their lives. Seven others were reported missing.

At least three members of the Cedarville's crew of 35 lost their lives. Seven others were reported missing.

The 588-foot Cedarville, a limestone carrier operated by U.S. Steel's Bradley Transportation Lines of Rogers City, Mich., and the Topdalsfjord, an ocean-going freighter, crashed together in late morning.

GOES DOWN QUICKLY

With her port side stove in, the Cedarville made a desperate effort to beach herself but she sank within 24 minutes, the Coast Guard said.

A fleet of small boats and planes, including two Coast Guard helicopters, began a search for survivors that lasted until dusk.

The Coast Guard and a U.S. Steel spokesman here identified the dead as: Stanley Haske, 36, wheelsman; Edward H. Jungman, 51, deck watchman, and Reinhold S. Radtke, 48, third engineer, all of Rogers City.

The Coast Guard icebreaker Mackinac picked up the Cedarville's 25 survivors. The Topdalsfjord, with her bow damaged, anchored in the straits, pending examination of her condition.

Survivors were taken aboard the Mackinac, which landed them at this community at the straits, which link Lakes Superior and Michigan and separate Michigan's two peninsulas.

Berlin Display

Kosygin Celebrates By Attacking U.S.

BERLIN (AP) — Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin and other leaders of the Communist world used the 20th anniversary of V-E Day on Friday to condemn the United States for what it is doing in Viet Nam and the Dominican Republic.

Kosygin, Premier Josef Cyrankiewicz of Poland, Deputy Premier Lu Ting-yi of Red China and others who came to help East Germany celebrate the downfall of the Nazis two decades ago called the United States an imperialistic aggressor threatening to plunge the world into war.

The tone was set by Kosygin, who lashed the United States "for violating the most elementary rules of international law" by its actions in the Congo, for landing troops in the Dominican Republic and "for the barbaric bombing attacks on the Republic of (North) Viet Nam."

He added a warning: "The Vietnamese people have friends and Washington must take this sooner or later into account. If the United States continues to follow stubbornly her policy of unreasonableness, then she is obviously ready to act contrary to world opinion."

Apparently referring to the ideological differences between the Soviet Union and Communist China, but never mentioning China specifically, Kosygin said the Western countries were counting on a split in the Red camp.

"They want to make capital out of the difficulties which have arisen in the world Socialist (Communist) movement and it would be wrong to underestimate these devious plans," he continued.

But he rejected what he called claims "of some people that only a new world war could retain the unity" of the international Communist movement.

"We have no more important tasks than to prevent a new world conflagration," he added.

The Soviet premier referred to the Berlin problem only at one point, stating that the West German government wants to "pocket" West Berlin and annex East Germany.

While the Chinese deputy premier also assailed the United States, he departed from the line taken by the other speakers in demanding a peace treaty with Germany to officially end World War II and a solution of the Berlin problem on the basis of such a treaty. Although the Russians also have insisted on a peace treaty, they and their East German allies have not mentioned it for some time.

Scouts To Stage Big Show Today

The largest public exhibition of the scouting year, the annual Scout-O-Rama of the Ouachita Valley Boy Scout Council, will be held today at the Ouachita Valley Fairgrounds in West Monroe.

Approximately 500 boys from 15 parishes in this area will participate in the activities, with events scheduled from 2 until 8 p.m. Displays will range from booth exhibits to outdoor camping and athletic demonstrations.

Among displays will be a miniature rock waterfall with a recirculating pump made by two den mothers, Mrs. Jenette Spurlock and Mrs. Jackie Szold of Pack 29. Cub scouts helped in making the display.

Scout council executive Jack Pankey said, "We have the largest, most entertaining program planned this year that we've ever had. Patrons can rest assured that they'll see a memorable show at whatever hour they choose to visit."

Merle Edwards of Monroe is chairman of the show and said that scouts will be on hand during the day to answer questions.

Purpose of the show is to provide the scouts an opportunity to demonstrate to the public what they have done and learned through their scouting year and what scouting means to them.

Tickets will be on sale at the fairgrounds. A family ticket can be purchased for $2.50 and will admit the whole family. Other tickets are $1 for adults and 50 cents for children.

Among the special skills and features to be on exhibit are first aid, nature study, wildlife management, Indian lore and costumes, a snake demonstration, signaling handicrafts, arts and crafts, olympic events, rescue breathing, snakebite treatment, cubcraft, fingerprinting, coin collecting, pioneering and rope-making.

Highlight of the six-hour event will be the Pinewood Derby championships, matching Cub Scout winners from each of the council's seven districts for a grand prize. The scouts will race miniature automobiles which they assembled themselves. The event will get underway at 6 p.m. and will be supervised by Council Cub Commissioner Humble Zeagler of Monroe. Trophies will be awarded to first, second and third place winners.

Saturday evening will be the time for the judging of the booths, based on quality, activity, materials, method of operation and interest to the public. Ribbons will be presented to the winners as the last event of the day.

1 Dead, 2 Critical

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Eight of the nine men injured in an explosion and fire at a shipyard were still hospitalized Friday.

The blast of undetermined origin Thursday occurred in the hold of a 100-foot, all-steel survey boat being constructed at the Halter Marine Service plant.

One man was killed. He was Adolph Vincent, a 43-year-old New Orleans Negro.

Of the injured, two are reported in critical condition and four in serious condition in New Orleans hospitals.

Lutheran Faith

Luther did not start a new church!

He merely began where he was—with the church of which he had been a member—and set about reforming it.

He dug deep to restore a "gospel-oriented and Christ-centered" theology to the church.

He removed from The Service elements that were not evangelical, and restored congregational participation to the worship life of the church.

Only after Luther's death was the name Lutheran used to designate a communion of the holy, catholic church.

Contrast Keynotes Concert

By ROBERT SIMONTON
World Staff Critic

Contrast was the keynote of the Scholarship Concert presented Friday evening at Neville High School auditorium, with program pieces ranging from charming folk songs to stirring marches to the eloquent "Battle Hymn of the Republic."

The contrast was carried out between the vocal and instrumental, the 75-member Concert Choir and 83-piece Concert Band of Northeast Louisiana State performing separately and then uniting forces for two selections.

Davis Bingham conducted the choir, which was accompanied by Ronny Brothers, while Joe Barry Mullins, conducted the band.

Smaller choral ensembles offered the simple and charming folk songs by Brahms and Di-Lasso's clear ringing "Echo Song." The full choir blended smoothly for "Wedding Cantata" in four parts by the American composer Daniel Pinkham, which is based on brief verses from the Song of Solomon. Soloists in the latter piece were Barbara Addison, soprano, and Ronald Stephens, tenor.

Clearly the favorite of the audience was the combined groups presentation of the rousing "Battle Hymn of the Republic." And, admittedly, alone it was well worth the price of admission.

Bach's "Toccata and Fugue in D Minor" was the band's first number, the rather restrained opening of the fugue serving as a perfect foil for the tempestuous toccata.

"March on Bastille," composed in 1937 by Honegger for the Paris Exposition to dramatize a portion of the pageant on the French Revolution, was selected as the band's second showcase. It was appropriately solemn and foreboding.

An excellent choice for a curtain closer was "Grand Symphony for Band" by Berlioz. The funeral march movement by the concert band was so vividly mournful, one could visualize the somber cortege. Jerry Clampit performed a trombone solo in the recitative and prayer and the groups again combined talents for the apotheosis.

The audience was small. In fact, it should have been much larger. The concert was well organized and well executed but, above all, it was for a worthy cause. This is not intended to mean that merely because a program of this nature has "scholarship" attached to it, it should immediately become a must for concert goers. The merits of this particular performance stand alone.

This was the first of the annual scholarship concerts, a Northeast music department effort of the entire faculty, designed to aid students interested in pursuing music majors.

If Friday's display of talent is any indication, the scholarships are well-placed and future concerts of this type are to be eagerly awaited.

Surfboards were introduced to California from Hawaii about 1907.

Judge West Rules

Trade Schools Must Integrate

BATON ROUGE (AP) — U.S. Dist. Judge E. Gordon West issued a permanent injunction Friday ending segregation in all state trade schools.

The ruling will apply to some 18 schools, since 10 others previously were under desegregation orders.

His injunction applied to state educational officials, prohibiting them from discriminating against Negro applicants at white trade schools.

A day earlier, the State Board of Education sent to Washington its revised policy statement which said it would distribute federal aid, in keeping with the Civil Rights Act, to all colleges, trade and special schools under federal court orders to end segregation, or for those with suits pending.

The federal lawsuit was brought under Title 4 of the 1964 Civil Rights Act.

Judge West said many state officials are finding themselves "on the horns of a dilemma" who find it impossible to obey both state and federal laws—until a federal court order is forthcoming.

Judge West reserved the right of the trade schools to decide the qualifications of applicants, so long as it is not on the basis of race.

He declined to hear a similar case where four Negro women of Rapides Parish were seeking to integrate the Avoyelles Vo-Technical Institute, saying the previous ruling speaks for itself.

In that case, four Negro women were seeking to take practical nursing courses at Huey P. Long Memorial Hospital in Pineville.

The judge also denied a motion by attorney Joel Dickinson who was seeking to collect an attorney's fee from the United States for work he did defending Emile Weston Jr., a Baton Rouge Negro, on a rape charge. The lawyer had been appointed to defend the Negro.

The judge criticized the attorney for bringing the suit, saying he was almost as ashamed of commenting on the case, as Dickinson should have been in filing it.

The judge said the primary purpose of the private practice of law was not to make money but to aid in the administration of justice, and that "the satisfaction of knowing it was a job well done should be sufficient."

Dickinson waged a seven-year legal battle to save Weston from the electric chair. Weston gained his freedom when a new trial was ordered and the woman he was accused of raping refused to return to Baton Touge to testify.

The attorney contended the administration of justice is a constitutional obligation of the United States, and that since the Negro's civil rights were involved, the U.S. should be responsible for the fee.

LBJ Outlines Major Points In Talk To Atlantic States

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson outlined Friday a six-point agenda of "urgent and unifinished business" for the Atlantic community and said one holdout nation "will not stand in the way of the rest."

Johnson did not mention French President Chalres de Gaulle by name, but he stated the administration's view of Paris policy by assailing "the kind of nationalism which would...destroy the dream of European unity and Atlantic partnership."

The President chose the 20th anniversary of the end of World War II in Europe to deliver what aides described as his first major policy speech on Europe since his inauguration.

The 18-minute address from the White House was broadcast nationally and televised live to Europe via the Early Bird communications satellite.

Mainly, Johnson hewed to the basic lines of U.S. policy toward Europe since the end of the great war: a growth in European unity and transatlantic ties, firmness against Communist pressure and a search for improved relations with the Soviet bloc.

Saying that those who gave their lives in World War II did not die in vain, Johnson said "shining achievement" over the past two decades includes the democratic revival of the defeating nations, growing European unity and U.S.-European partnership, prosperity through closer economic ties and peace through firmness against any aggression.

"Here is some of our unfinished and urgent business," he added, listing his half-dozen points in this order:

—"We must hasten the slow erosion of the Iron Curtain" by building bridges between the Communist East European nations and the West, including increasing East-West trade.

—"We must work for the reunification of Germany" under which the East and West Germans can freely choose their own future. "The shame of the (Communist) East Germans must be ended."

—Solution of a wide range of economic problems, including greater European integration, freer flow of transatlantic trade and modernizing the international payments system.

—A new effort for a common program by the advanced countries for aiding backward areas around the world.

—"More effective forms of common defense," including a share in nuclear defense for those who want to participate. He added that atomic-backed, strong U.S. forces will remain in Europe "just as long as they are needed and wanted."

—"We must work toward an agreement with the Soviet Union. Our firmness in danger has shown that the door to conquest in the West is forever closed. Thus, the door to peaceful settlement is now open."

In arguing against De Gaulle's vision of a Europe of independent nation-states less tied to the United States, Johnson said: "There are some efforts today to replace the partnership with suspicion, and the drive toward unity with a policy of division.

"The peoples of the Atlantic will not return to that narrow nationalism which has torn and bloodied the fabric of our society for generations.

"The kind of nationalism which would blight the hope and destroy the dream of European unity and Atlantic partnership is in the true interests of no free nation on earth. It is the way back toward the anguish from which we came.

"Let us therefore continue the task we have begun, attentive to counsel but unmoved by any who seek to turn us aside.

"We will go all together if we can. But if one of us cannot join in common venture, it will not stand in the way of the rest."

Among the latest in a long series of differences between France and her Atlantic Allies is an argument over a proposed joint declaration by the Western occupation powers on Germany. Because of the policy differences, U.S. officials said it now is doubtful whether the United States, Britain and France will be able to agree on a joint 20th anniversary declaration on Germany.

In a separate White House statement, Johnson announced he will nominate John M. Leedy to be assistant secretary of state for European affairs.

Leedy, 51, has been U.S. ambassador to the Organization for European Cooperation and Development in Paris. He succeeds William Tyler, who has been named ambassador to the Netherlands. Both are career diplomats.1t

Football Players Will Go On Trial For Coed Rapes

BATON ROUGE (AP) — The trial of four of seven former Southern University Negro football players on aggravated rape charges involving two negro coeds last November opens here Monday.

The four defendants are Laurie Green, Minden; Bernard Bradford Jr., and Herbert Jackson, Houston, Tex. and Jeffrey Addie, Baton Rouge.

Three others, Alfred Beauchamp, Baton Rouge; Rudolph Myers, Memphis, Tenn., and William Davis, Chattanooga, Tenn., face trial May 24.

All seven were indicted by the grand jury. They were accused of luring the two girls to an off-campus apartment. One victim was from New Orleans, the other, Alexandria.

Dist. Judge Fred LeBlanc, meanwhile, granted separate trials for James Collins and Judith White, Negroes facing trial Monday on murder charges.

Area School To Observe Farmers' Day

RUSTON (Special) — Ag-Forestry Day will be held at Louisiana Tech today, with a newly created advisory commission collaborating with the School of Agriculture and Forestry in arranging the program.

During the special occasion, to be observed from 2:30 to 7 p.m., the various departments of the ag-forestry school will have open house.

At 4 p.m., Lantz Womack of Winnsboro, state representative from Franklin Parish and a general farmer, will give an address in the picnic area west of the Tech farm pond. The speaking will be followed by a beef barbecue. All persons who have attended Tech's School of Agriculture are invited to be present with their families, according to Dr. Hal B. Barker, dean of the ag-forestry division.

The new advisory commission assisting in planning the day's events consists of persons interested in various phases of the agricultural and forestry development in north Louisiana. Harper Willis, owner of Macon Ridge Tractor Corp., Winnsboro, is president of the group.

Serving with him as officers for the 1965-66 year will be Don Hinton of Minden, vice president and Ford Fallin of Alexandria, secretary.

Other members of the commission are R. P. Thomas of Gibsland, Jack Dillard, Jess Lloyd, Larry Beadles, Calhoun Berry, all of Shreveport, Johnny D. Grantham of Haynesville, John Green, Bastrop, James Zeagler, Alexandria, Dr. Glenn Cobb, Nacogdoches, Tex., Nolan Fleming, Little Rock, Ray Alexander, Farmerville and Lamar Colvin, Dubach.

The main speaker of Ag-Forestry Day, Representative Womack, is a native of West Carroll Parish and has been actively engaged in farming in various areas of northeast Louisiana. He owns and operates a 1,280-acre farm of which 880 acres are in row crops consisting of soybeans and cotton and 400 acres in pasture for dairy and beef cattle programs. He has served in the Louisiana legislature since 1958.

Army Will Draft 17,000 For June

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Defense Department called Friday for the drafting of 17,000 men for the Army in June — the biggest monthly draft quota since November 1963.

The June call is 1,900 greater than the 15,100 for May and 3,300 greater than the 13,700 for April.

"The June call, in accordance with established policies, has been computed by the Army to cover losses, thereby maintaining the approved active Army strength," the announcement said.

Increased draft calls have been made necessary by a dropoff in enlistments.

Officials have attributed this dropoff to rumors that Selective Service would be ated.

A Defense Department manpower study now nearing completion is expected to recommend continuation of the draft.

The Navy, Marine Corps and Air Force will not draw on the draft during June, as has been the case for years.

Nations' Free Lunch

Louisiana, under the regime of the late Governor and Senator Huey P. Long, was one of the first states in the union to adopt a program of giving free lunches to school children. At that time, back in the 1930s, there were many who raised their eyebrows over the question of letting the state pay for lunches for school children. It seemed to border too closely on socialism and many believed it was not a sound fiscal policy.

Now we are confronted with the astounding fact that the United States is not satisfied with taking care of the children in our own country but that it is providing lunches for 40,000,000 children in many parts of the world. And this is only a part of our Food for Peace program.

A report by this organization showed that in the last fiscal year exports made in its behalf reached a new high of 18 million tons of goods, with a market value of $1.7 billion.

At President Johnson's instigation, meetings at White House level are being held to hear opinions from government officials, not all of them associated with agriculture, who believe the time has come to sell our surplus farm products to hungry nations, rather than to give them away. Johnson is also dissatisfied with the farm subsidy program.

It is generally acknowledged that big farmers have grown richer through increasingly efficient farming methods and that poor farmers, while not growing poorer, have not been able to produce enough to become prosperous. Most of the pay for not planting crops has gone to the big producers — those with big acreages on which they have crop quotas.

Searching for a new system to dispose of farm products, the specialists sitting in on the discussions have agreed tentatively on only one general objective. Instead of giving away surplus foods, they want to sell them, chiefly through international bargaining.

It is easy to see why our balance of trade has been running into the red. Even though the United States is by far the world's biggest producer of foods and other commodities, we don't get any money back from other countries when we let them have our products free of charge.

Agriculture is world wide and the United States has long run into many obstacles in trying to sell farm products abroad, whether or not they are in surplus at home.

Now, growing world populations and the inefficient farming methods of many nations are creating an increasing demand for American farm products, even though the obstacles to import, or to a large role for them in international commerce, have not been reduced.

Five Presidents have heard their secretaries of agriculture tell them how surpluses might be reduced, while thousands upon thousands of bushels and bales each year have been taken over by the Commodity Credit Corporation, to be stored until they rot or find a market, usually at far less than the market price. When such sales were made abroad, this country was accused of dumping.

In all probability, our greatest problem in commodities abroad has been the general high-price level in this country. If we had kept our prices down to the general average, we would have no difficulty in selling our products nor in keeping a favorable trade balance.

Now, at long last, it is reported that President Johnson, who is acquiring a reputation of seeking the most direct solutions, has asked why sale of surplus farm products could not be used to increase our foreign trade and to help solve our balance of payments difficulties.

This seems to be the most sensible suggestion that has been made by a President on the subject of United States agriculture in more than three decades.

Don't Want Handouts

Nothing disturbs some politicians more than to learn that the voters don't want handouts. Such politicians always want the voters to feel indebted to them and their chief way of creating this indebtedness is to take money away from some people (painlessly, they hope) and give it to someone else.

New York's recently adopted son and Senator, Robert F. Kennedy, appears to be disturbed at the way some of his constituents are acting in Chautauqua, Cattaraugus, Allegany, Steuben, Chemung, Tioga and Broome counties, those counties making up what is known as the state's "southern tier". It seems that Kennedy wants these counties to ask for handouts and they are not doing it.

After Kennedy went to the trouble to have these and a half-dozen neighboring counties included in the government's anti-poverty program for Appalachia one might think the New York Staters would be falling all over themselves grabbing for federal handouts and dripping with gratitude.

Apparently that is what Kennedy thought, too, because, on a visit to the region recently, he noted that not a single county had applied for aid. Instead of the "eager welcome the program deserved," he said, he found only complacency and heard only such expressions as: "We're doing fine," "We're not poor,' and "No program like that for this community."

It is not hard to understand why a take-away, give-away politician like the Senator might be upset by such a situation. A bunch of contented constituents, not wanting anything, must be an unnerving sight. Given enough independent-minded people, there is always the danger that a lot of "I'll - do- you - a - favor" politicians might find themselves among the unemployed, even if the fathers of some of them make so much money that they are not in much danger of being on the poverty list.

Success Is Journey

"Success is a journey, not a destination."

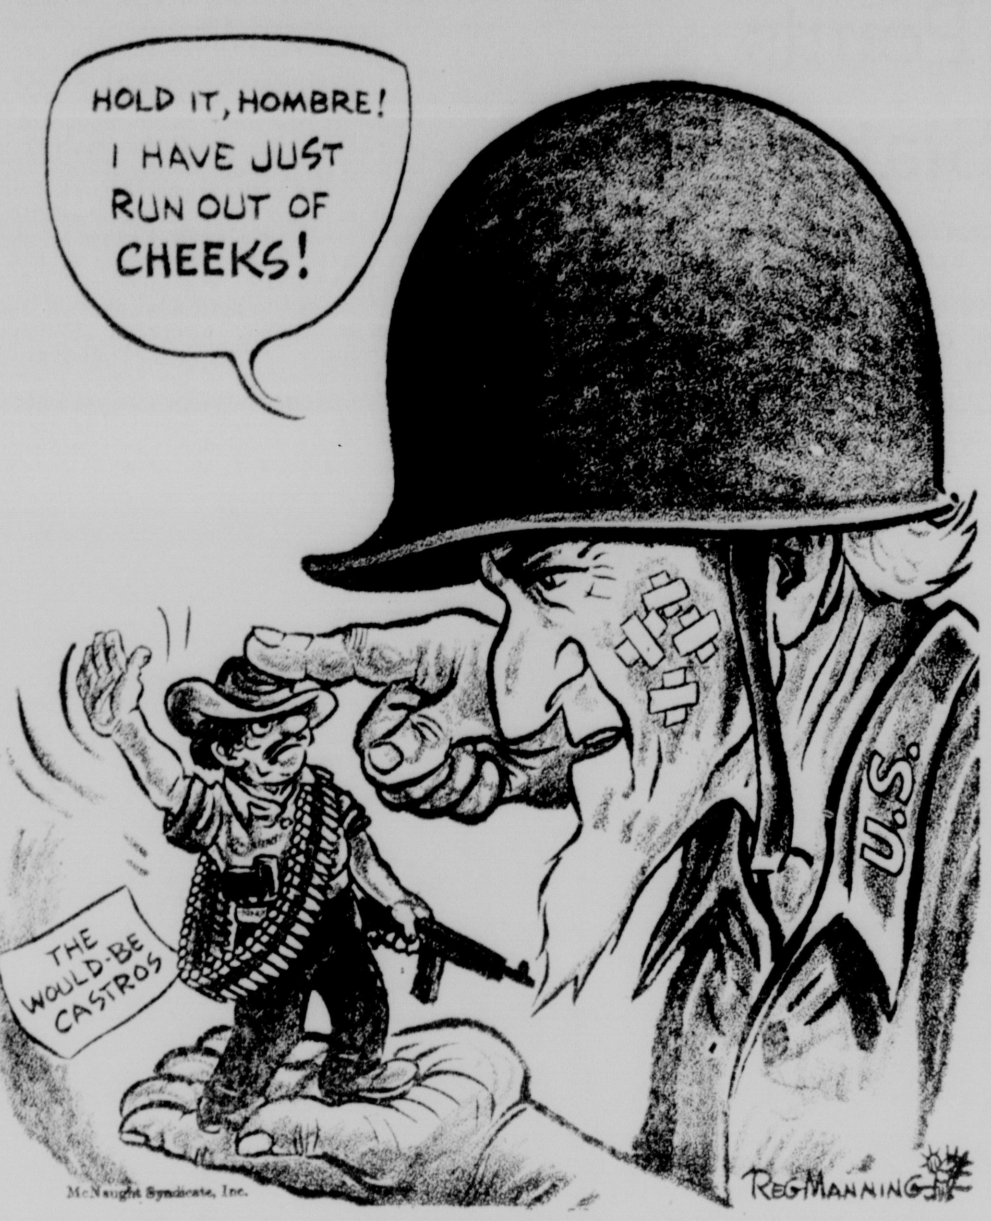
That statement is attributed to a man named Anthony F. Arpaia. Perhaps he was the first to put the idea into those exact words but the fact has been known down through the ages.

Those who have pursued success most assiduously, whether in the desire for money, power, political domination or religious exaltation have been the ones who continued the pursuit longest. The old motto that "Nothing succeeds like success" exemplifies this fact.

Individual, personal success flourishes most in a free country, where it can be nourished by energy, initiative, insight, competition, a wide-open field and sometimes by intuition itself.

People who know that success is a journey and not a destination do not belong to the breed which bases its principal hope on handouts from the government. Those who constantly look for handouts have never learned from experience that success is either a journey or a destination. Their major desire is to "get by." With them, ambition has long been supplanted by resignation — and they never set out on a real journey nor look for a destination.

Turning Off Point



WILLIAM F. BUCKLEY, JR.

Red China Is Favored

Chamber Of Commerce Votes Yes

THE MAJORITY of the delegates to the Chamber of Commerce voted at their annual convention in favor of easing relations with Red China. The delegates didn't come out specifically for recognition — it is probable that if they had, the withdrawal of public recognition of the Chamber of Commerce would have resulted sooner than the recognition of Red China. But the political effect of the vote was clearly in the direction of accommodating Red China. Its purpose, according to one reporter who identified Erwin Canham of the Christian Science Monitor as the principal lobbyist for the vote, is to get American foreign policy in Asia "off dead center," in order to "establish contact with the Chinese people."

In California, Governor Brown has repeatedly come out for trade with Red China, and there is no denying that businessmen on the West Coast are hungry for it. The 1949 Export Control Act, the measure that has principally inhibited trade with the enemy will expire soon, and the pressure is to write a new law which will substantially lift the embargo on strategic shipments to the slave states. President Kennedy's big wheat deal with the Soviet Union foreshadowed all of this. The pressures on him and his successor are not alone from the ideologists of reconciliation, but also from the businessmen. The way they like to put it is this: we are supposed to compete not only with other American firms but with foreign firms. The foreign firms are trading with the Communists every day, with the result that the enemy is getting pretty much everything it desires anyway. So what is the point, if we cannot enforce a world embargo, in simply depriving ourselves of valuable profits that are ours for the asking?

THE POINT, of course, is that the Soviet Union cannot get everything it desires from countries other than the United States; that although it is true that our allies trade with the enemy, they do show some restraint, if not as much as we'd like to see, in respect of materials of obvious strategic usefulness; and the Iron Curtain Countries greatly desire to increase the passage of goods between our country and theirs. If the Communists believed that it hurt America more than it would hurt them, to refuse to trade with us, that is what they would do, since their practice is to put politics ahead of economics.

There remains the attitude of individual Americans on the whole subject. It is considered, by the giants of industry and diplomacy, oh so . . . primitive, to discuss economic trade with the Communists in evangelical accents. Business is business, you know, and we mustn't all become bores, like John Brown bringing up the subject of slavery every single time anybody mentioned the South . . . But interrupt the flow of an elementary moral syllogism (if the Communists are our enemy, and to trade with the Communists is to help them, then to trade with Communists is to help our enemy) with what they consider a lot of self - serving fancy talk motivated, in the lust analysis, by avarice. So that when, a few weeks ago, representatives of the Young Americans for Freedom began picketing a major tire company in protest against its plans to build a synthetic rubber plant in Rumania, the sympathy of the young Americans got was overwhelming. It may have been the shock of seeing young people protest, for a change, something pro-Communist in effect, rather than the reverse, that had the effect of stunning a grateful community. Anyway, before long the company decided that after all it didn't want to build a synthetic rubber plant in Rumania, and the young patriots, utterly unabashed by their unsophistication, have drawn up a list of other American concerns that are planning to increase their business behind the Iron Curtain, who will now be called upon, by picketers, to answer to American public opinion. And American public opinion is, like the young Americans for freedom, unencumbered by what Lincoln used to call "all those sophistical devices" by which we elude the beckonings of conscience.

DR. PETER J. STEINCROHN

Left-Handers Get All-Out Support

DEAR DR. STEINCROHN: I'd like to comment on that ridiculous letter from the woman who's against left-handers. Who does she think she is? What is so wrong about being a left-handed person? It made me angry because I happen to be very much a left-hander. Why is she so self - righteous? What does she mean by "tragic!"?

I wouldn't care if I had a left-handed baby just so she can run through the house and stick her hands in jam and get it all over her face and clothes left-handed. God loves left-handed children, too. — Mrs. M.

DEAR DR. STEINCROHN: For 58 years I have been what they call a southpaw. Mother of seven fine young men and women, some of whom like their mother—southpaws. And every time one of their babies show a tendency to use the left hand they proudly remark: Look! Another Granny!

I'm an artist, self-taught. Can paint some pretty nice pictures. Whatever most people can do, they claim I do it better. I barely managed to muddle through the fourth grade. Yet, many times, high school grads have come to me to write things for them, because they said I was a better writer.

WHAT'S BITING HER?

Miss R. wrote you as if it were a federal offense to be left-handed. What is biting Miss R.? Suppose all people had blue eyes or black hair? Where, I ask you would be our beautiful world of color and variety? Now that it's off my chest, I feel fine. Left-handers don't need any defense anyway. I think we all feel just as human as anyone. So where's the tragedy? — Mrs. H.

Comment: I take my pen in my right hand to agree: Hear! Hear!

DEAR DR. STEINCROHN: I am 53, with a rheumatic heart since childhood. Lately, I find that I can hardly stand the cold. I'd love to be able to get out as much as possible to shop and see my neighbors without being chilled to death. I'm an outdoor lover. What do you suggest? — Mrs. B.

Comment: Some people are actually allergic to cold — whether they have heart disease or not. I suppose all you can do is try to keep warm by all the artificial means available — warm clothes, warm living quarters. And don't try "braving" bad weather. That's an almost certain invitation to a flareup in your rheumatic heart condition. Of course, living in a state like Florida would cancel out many of your discomforts. If the change is possible and practical in your case, consider the move.

DEAR DR. STEINCROHN: Why do you try so hard to save people's lives in your column, "How to Stop Killing Yourself"? Death is inevitable, isn't it? Besides, with increased longevity, isn't it likely that the percentage of unhappy people will also increase? With unhappy people enduring and endless, day-to-day existence, don't you think a better service to mankind would be to evolve a dignified and pleasant exit from this type of life?

Surely, better ways of termination can be had than the crude methods noted in the news every day. Surely you have some suggestions to offer, or have I been too shocking? — Mrs. M.

Comment: You don't shock me — just make me feel sorry for you. How horrible it must be to exist with this outlook on life. But that's how it is with deep depressions. I wish I knew who you are, where you live. I would advise your family to call in a doctor to treat you as an emergency case. Suggestions? I dare you go see a doctor today.

Dr. Steincrohn's booklet, "22 Ways to Prevent and Treat Coronary Disease," will be mailed to you on receipt of a stamped, self - addressed envelope and 25 cents in coin for handling. Address your request to Dr. Steincrohn, in care of this newspaper.

Dr. Steincrohn is sorry he cannot answer readers letters. Nevertheless, most questions are answered in later columns.

RALPH DE TOLEDANO

Puerto Rico Seat Of Revolt Plans

AMERICAN refusal to look Communism in the eye planted the seeds for the present Dominican revolt. This refusal led to the withdrawal of U.S. support for the Dominican Republic at a critical time in it political and economic development. How the United States permit-sliTiipicmfw hrd lcmf hdmhm ted subversive and pro-Communist force to use its own soil to plot against a friendly neighbor remains one of the unexplained pieces in the Domincan jig-saw.

That the action was planned in Puerto Rico can hardly be denied. While Donald Reid Cabral, head of the junta governing the Dominican Republic, was improving the island's economy, ridding it of corrupt generals and other officials, and preparing for a free election this September, the forces of subversion were busily plotting their revolt. Ousted leftist President Juan Bosch was spending large sums in newspaper ads and in taped radio broadcast attacking the Reid Cabral government.

IN JUNE, 1964, Bosch publicly predicted "a violent revolution from within by those who are not permitted to make a gradual revolution." This was the signal for an assault on the military barracks at Victoria. Exploding bombs killed 10 people and maimed 111 others. The attackers fled to the campus of a nearby university where they were given asylum as "students." Seven strikes against the government led by Communist-led labor groups shook the government. The Castroite June 14 Party agitated openly for revolution. The National Students Federation, affiliated with Castro's student international, openly espoused the guerrilla cause and led bloody strikes aganst academic authorities, ostensibly in protest against entrance examinations which were characterized as "serving the Yankee imperialist oligarchy."

Efforts by the U.S. immigration Service to block the traffic between Puerto Rico and the Dominican Republican were swiftly blocked by the administration of Governor Luis Munoz Marin. The Central Intelligence Agency, aroused by the reports of its operatives, sought to mobilize some sentiment in Washington for the Reid Cabral government. Whether the matter was taken up by the National Security Council is a question wrapped in the enigma of executive privilege.

Certainly, the State Department's middle echelon was aware that Bosch's PRD had entered into a working arrangement with the Moscow-Communist Popular Socialist Party (PSP), the Peking - dominated Dominican Popular Movement (MPD), and the Castroite June 14 Party. Angel Mielan, leading Bosch's PRD in this coalition, claimed that his party, the largest, would not be run by the others. But since his allegiance was to the Communist bloc, his assertions were simply window dressing for naive Americans.

IN THE DAYS before the revolt, Intelligence sources were aware that a Communist junta had been organized to rule the "united front." At the same time, there were stirrings in Puerto Rico which indicated that Juan Bosch was preparing a return to the Dominican Republic at the head of his "allies."

The names of the members of the "unofficial" junta were well known to Latin American experts in Washington. They included Manuel Gonsalez, representing the Soviet Communist Party; Carlos Dore, a PSP Communist and activist in the Dominican Student Federation; Hector Florentino, head of Fragua, a Communinst student organization; and Daniel Ozuma, of the Castroite June 14 Party. Activists trained in Cuba and in Czechoslovakia, where the international Red conspiracy maintains special camps for this purpose, began infiltrating the Dominican Republic. Some of them entered openly, unmolested by a government trying hard to prove to Washington that it was not "repressive."

IN TYPICAL Castro style, the Red junta began making alliances with disaffected military men. These were not hard to find. The Reid Cabral junta had mercilessly rooted out graft in the armed forces. Ambition also played a part among those military leaders who saw themselves losing influence in an increasingly representative government.

When the revolt broke out, on April 24, the Communists and their military allies passed out guns and ammunition to street mobs and robber gangs. Juvenile delinquents, some as young as 12 and 14, were also given weapons. From the very start, the Communists were in control. The Bosch party, hardly protesting its "democratic" nature, went along.

From the very start of the tragedy, the developing facts were known. At any time, the revolt might have been nipped in the bud — had there been the will to do so among the boys of foggy Bottom. The intervention by President Johnson came at the eleventh hour. Another few days and the Dominican Republic would have joined the roster of America's enemies. Only the United States Marines stand between us and that eventuality.

BARRY GOLDWATER

De Gaulle Regard For Russia Rises

PARIS, FRANCE — The belief in this politically sophisticated capital is that France's loss of Algeria was the beginning of Gen. Charles de Gaulle's cool rapprochement with the Soviet Union. Many believe the reasons are convincing.

The thinking is that in France's post - war anti-colonial fervor it became apparent her efforts to hold Algeria were doomed and isolated. France was being bled white by the effort.

But it was also true that Algeria was inextricably linked to the defense of Europe. It and the rest of North Africa formed the southern flank of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. The loss of North Africa, accomplished when Algeria was turned over to a pro-Communist revolutionary socialist government, turned that southern flank into the soft underbelly of Europe.

De Gaulle was unable to stop this. Unaided by France's usual friends, including the United States, he had to watch Europe's defenses take a radical new form. His twin reactions of rapprochement with the Soviets and the plans for an independent nuclear force for France are precise reflections of this.

THE RAPPROCHEMENT recognizes the Soviet Union as the major and mightiest power directly affecting the destiny of Europe. The United States, by its growing separation from Europe, is regarded as less consequential.

The development of an independent nuclear force recognizes that the Soviets cannot be trusted too far, but that neither can America's will to defend France or any part of Europe.

De Gaulle understandably may also be wounded that the United States, now embarked upon a significant war in Viet Nam, once watched while France took a bloody beating there. America must remember that painful past as it seeks France's support in that war.

FRANCE MAY BE disillusioned about American firmness in Europe, evidenced by our slowly deteriorating position in Berlin and our lack of spirited resistance to Communist pressures as compared with our actions in Viet Nam. She has seen the Atlantic wall of defense shrink to her shores. Defeated in North Africa, she has seen the southern wall crumble. Dejected that any force will counter Soviet power, she has seen her northern and eastern defense walls become mere fences under the looming reality of Communist troops and missiles.

Charles de Gaulle reacted in the normal and rational manner of a leader. He is convinced France is a cultural spark that might explode in whatever future finds the world finally at peace, if she can just survive.

His actions are bitterly disappointing to most Americans. His belief that French character can both deal with and withstand communism's character may seem vain and foolish wishful thinking. His independent nuclear force may seem a pop gun in a world of giant weapons.

But most of all it should cause Americans to ask some serious questions about their character and the character of their nation's policies.

Hair Is Asked To Name Parish Game Warden

Sen. Jamar Adcock of Monroe said Friday he requested Director Joe Hair Jr. of the Louisiana Wild Life & Fisheries Commission to take "immediate steps" to fill a game warden's vacancy in Ouachita Parish.

"Ouachita Parish badly needs help in this field and I so advised Mr. Hair," Adcock said.

Hair said several weeks ago that an agent would be hired for Ouachita but no action has been taken by his department.

"I told Mr. Hair that I wanted any qualified man that suits the department," Adcock said. "We want the vacancy filled to get on with the job."

Ouachita has one agent, Frank Swayze, while some parishes have several agents.

Gremillion Rules

BATON ROUGE (AP)—Atty. Gen. Jack Gremillion ruled Friday it is possible for a candidate to fill the unexpired term of the appeal court post and still seek election to a full term in the same 1966 election.

This apparently settled the question whether this could be done in connection with a vacancy caused by the death of the Judge G. Caldwell Herget of the First Circuit Court of Appeal.

The legal opinion was requested by Secretary of State Wade O. Martin, who prepares ballots.

"It is our opinion," the attorney general held, "that an individual could run for both of these offices for the reason that two ballots must be prepared, one for the special election, and one for the general election, and therefore, his name would not be appearing on the ballot more than once."

BIG LETDOWN

LONDON (UPI)—The Swimming Teachers' Association charged Friday one instructor of every four employed to teach schoolchildren to swim cannot swim himself.

Report Shows Business Gains In Monroe Area

All but three lines of businesses in Monroe showed increases during March over those of February, according to a report in Louisiana Business Review, publication of the Division of Research, College of Business Administration, LSU.

Monroe residents purchased more furniture, planned more construction, bought more food and used more electricity than they did in the month previous.

Building permits values increased more than any of the other areas with a 200.8 per cent increase.

Other increases included: department store sales, 24.9; retail grocery sales, 13.6; women's clothing sales, 46.9; shoe store sales, 29.5; furniture sales, 29.3; building material sales, 20.7; auto supplies and accessories, 26.9; postal receipts, 1.53; wholesale grocery sales, 14.

Manufacturing sales, 35.6; telephones in service, 0.6; electric power consumption, 16.6; freight carloadings, 20.6; air express shipments, 20.3; bank debits, 22.7; and unemployment benefit payments, 25.6.

Because of these other purchases, local residents were putting less money in the banks, and men were buying fewer clothes. Bank deposits decreased 10.1 per cent while men's clothing sales dropped 6.1 per cent.

Retail hardware sales declined 3.3 per cent.

Business conditions improved this March over those of one year ago the same month. Increases were seen in 12 lines with decreases in eight.

The largest gain over the year was in the value of building permits, up 185.8 per cent, with shoe store sales showing the biggest decrease, 41.6 per cent.

National Security
Reds' Techniques Barred At Seminar

Monroe delegates to the National Security Seminar at Shreveport Friday heard Communism branded as a system which employs the tactics of depression, infiltration, deception and propaganda to attain its goals.

Col. B. C. Andrus Jr., USAF, addressed the more than 900 in attendance at "Monroe Day" on the subject of "Techniques of Communism." This was one of the four lectures on the program, which also included two films on the series Friday.

"Among the groups which are targets for communism are religious, labor, the unemployed and Negroes," Col. Andrus said.

USAF Lt. Col. L. R. Waterman, speaking on "International Relations," said that the United Nations is the world's best machinery for peaceful settlement of world disputes. He called for the support of this organization and its numerous agencies, warning that "if the U.N. fails, nations fail with it."

He also compared the strategic and systematic revolutions of the Communist world thriving on disruptions over the world, with the stable and peaceful development of the United States.

The expanding economy and value of the dollar, which is important "but won't win wars," was traced by Navy Capt. W. B. Oliver, whose subject matter concerned the financing of national security.

"The United States is the most powerful force in the free world," Oliver told the audience, "and must help those who are less powerful."

He said that U.S. assistance to other countries is for the benefit of peace and not merely "give-away programs."

Col. C. E. Sullivan Jr. said the free world has a greater military force for fewer dollars because of the forces of all the allies combined. As an example he said the United States spends about $4,000 per year on each soldier, while some of our allies spend about one-twentieth of this amount.

Besides the lectures, two films were also shown the delegates. One was "Military-Civilian Action in Guatemala," the other "Communist Target — Youth."

"Monroe Day," as well as all sessions of the Shreveport Security Seminar, was conducted by the Industrial College of the Armed Forces. It is designed to increase general understanding of national security.

The seminar will be resumed Monday and will run through May 14.

Judge In Grief

Losing New Bride Most Tragic Day

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — "I would give up my judgeship, everything I have — everything — if I could have my sweetheart back."

Superior Court Judge Thomas C. Yager, 47, sat numbly in a bathrobe in his memento-filled apartment, surrounded by unopened wedding presents and the unused tickets of his tragically ended honeymoon.

"Yesterday was the most tragic day of my life," he told a newsman.

A Coast Guard plane, meanwhile, circled above the ocean off the Southern California coast, seeking a trace of Eileen Keliher-Jeffers Yager, 61, his bride of four days, who disappeared from their honeymoon yacht Thursday. Friday afternoon, the search was called off.

Judge Yager, who married the prominent socialite Monday in the private chapel of James Francis Cardinal McIntyre, Catholic archbishop of Los Angeles, told a Los Angeles Herald-Examiner newsman about his ill-starred honeymoon:

"We set the alarm for 5 a.m. to get an early start back to Newport Beach (from Santa Catalina Island).

"I asked Eileen how she was at getting up early and she told me, 'Okay — all you have to do is get me on my feet.'"

Yager said they left the harbor at 6:45 a.m., after he'd checked the condition of their chartered 36-foot cabin cruiser "care Free", and set a direct course for Newport Beach, 32 miles away.

"We were both on the flying bridge. The only controls are there. We were about 45 minutes out of Avalon (Catalina's harbor).

"I remember saying something to the effect, 'Sweetheart, I have to go below for a minute. Would you take the wheel for a while?'

"She did and I reduced the speed and then went below."

He said he was below decks about 10 minutes.

"When I came up she was gone. I never was so shocked in my life. I panicked."

He said he circled and searched, then tried the radio but it had blown a fuse.

"I remember pulling out a couple of life jackets and trying to find her through my binoculars. But I didn't see a trace — not a trace.

"I didn't know things like that could happen to people. I thought that they floated for a little while, at least."

He said his bride knew how to swim.

"There was a low railing around the flying bridge. Perhaps something caught her eye — she always did love Views — and she got up to look through her binoculars and toppled over.

"There's another thing, too. She wouldn't come right out and tell me she was seasick, but would only say she felt woozy.

"The point is she wouldn't tell me she was ill, only that she was 'woozy.' I don't know, she may have gotten ill again and didn't tell me."

The Yagers were to fly to Hawaii on Friday to continue their honeymoon, then continue to New York, Washington and Boston.

Mrs. Yager, adopted daughter of the late William M. Jeffers, retired president of the Union Pacific Railroad, inherited most of his fortune, believed to be more than $500,000 when he died in 1953.

The Yagers met about five years ago.

The judge's clerk, Frances Church, said he had been an amateur sailor for two years. But Joe Scovil, harbor master at Avalon, said he talked to Yager on Wednesday and "it was apparent he didn't know much of anything about a boat, and shouldn't have been on one."

Lt. Cmdr. Herbert Johnson, senior investigative officer for the Coast Guard, said Mrs. Yager's disappearance is considered an accident.

How many registered voters are there in the city limits of West Monroe?

Mrs. Mae Lucky, Ouachita Parish registrar of voters, said during the last election, 10,096 persons were qualified. However, since then some new registrants have been on the books. Figures on the new voters have not been compiled.

On numerous occasions, under police direction, large houses have been allowed to be moved down Louisville at around 8 a.m. while traffic is heavy. Why does the Monroe police dept. allow this to happen? Also the A. & L. M. Railroad blocks traffic at this time. Can something be done about this?

In answer to the first question, local police officials said that when a house is to be moved, the operation usually starts before daylight so as to affect a minimum amount of traffic. However, they point out, that difficulties can not be avoided, at times. For example, they cited instances where it took hours just to move a house a few miles because of the house shifting and jacks having to be brought in to level it on the truck.

Police said they have never heard of the A. & L. M. Railroad being tied up for any great length of time. "To the best of our knowledge," they said, "a switch engine crosses the tracks about three times a week, holding up traffic for only a short length of time."

However, local authorities said that if they should receive any complaint abut the crossing, they will check it out.

Why was a traffic light installed at the Twin City shopping Center on Louisville where there is not an intersection, and there is still not a traffic light at the corner of Louisville and Betin across from Eastgate? It appears that there should be one there because of the school and post office locations.

Mayor George Whitlow, head of the traffic division of the Monroe police department, said the light was placed on Louisville Avenue near the Twin City Shopping Center by the State Department of Highways after, and only after, a traffic density survey had indicated such a light was needed there. The traffic count showed that the number of vehicles using this area, and the resultant congestion, could be alleviated by sinstallation of a traffic signal.

The signal was not installed at the Twin City Shopping Center as such, but rather at the intersection of Louisville Avenue and Newcomb Street, which enters Louisville from the south. Incidentally, the merchants at Twin City Center regulated the traffic lanes in the parking area to provide most of the traffic entering from or leaving by Loiusville to use the lane handled by the traffic signal.

The traffic count on Betin does not justify a signal at the present time, Major Whitlow said.

We have an old violin in the family that was acquired in Europe, with these words inside: "fecit at Formas, Hieronum Amati Pestini, 1-13 (second number missing). Can you interpret this? Also, is there any place in Monroe this violin can be appraised?

Dr. Eloy Fominaya, professor of strings at Northeast Louisiana State College's Department of Music, said that the field of violin appraisal is quite technical and that labels alone are not enough to judge the value of an instrument.

"A literal translation of the label merely states that the instrument was made after a model of Hieronymus (Jerome) Amati, a famous Italian violin maker, who died in 1638." he said, adding that "the question of identification and appraisal of old violins is one that frequently arises."

"The possibility that a genuine 'Stradivarious' might be resting in someone's attic is very remote, but does exist. Experts have accounted for over 600 of his 1,100 instruments. Wars, fires and natural calamities have probably destroyed most of the remainder. Nevertheless, the hope of discovery of a 'lost treasure' is always present.

"The idea that only genuine 'Strads' are of any value is not quite true. Many famous and obscure makers living during and after Stradivarious' time produced instruments of nearly equal value. Equally false is the idea that a reproduction — even one bearing a facsimile of the Stradivarious label — is either worthless or intentionally fraudulent. Many such labels are intended to indicate the particular model from which it was copied. Some of these reproductions made by master craftsmen are fine instruments commanding a high purchase price.

"It is important to understand that a violinist, no matter how experienced, can make little more than an educated guess as to identification and appraisal. This is the responsibility of the expert, as it takes years of study and the examination of thousands of instruments to be able to recognize the genuine from the copy. Only by means of examination of the varnish, the model, wood selection, and the details of workmanship, can an expert determine the authenticity of an instrument. This is essential before an accurate appraisal can be made.

"Professional appraisals are available from a number of dealers and experts, whose business it is to restore and maintain these priceless instruments. Names, addresses, and instruction for packing and shipping may be secured from Dr. Eloy Fominaya, Department of Music, Northeast Louisiana State College."

Has the West Monroe Fire Dept. answered calls to Olin Mathieson recently? Has the Monroe Fire Dept. also answered Fire Dept.

West Monroe firemen answered a call to Olin April 22. West Monroe Fire Chief E. C. Taylor said, "I imagine we'll answer any calls from any industries outside the city limits."

Monroe Fire Chief H. L. Hales said his department has not answered any calls from Olin recently. He said further that his department will not answer any calls whatsoever outside the city limits.

Jury Acquits Man At Trial In Court Here

A five-man jury returned a verdict of not guilty in the theft trial of a local man Friday in Fourth District Court.

Found not guilty was James Edward Balsamo of 1000 N. 5th St., Monroe. Balsamo was charged with theft of $240 from James H. Ellis on April 3. Judge Hillyer S. Parker presided over the trial.

In other action, the trial of Magnolia M. Hicks, 40, of 732 Coleman St., West Monroe, charged with negligent homicide, was continued until Sept. 29.

Continued until Sept. 27 was the trial of James E. Schanks of 904 Henderson Rd., Schanks Lane, West Monroe, charged with driving while under the influence of intoxicating beverages, third offender.

Harold Blakley, 2308 S. Grand St., Monroe, pleaded guilty to obtaining credit without permission and was remanded until a later date for sentencing.

Continued without date was Foster Poole of 1201 Cole Ave., Monroe, charged with issuing worthless checks.

In an earlier session of court, Glen Doyle Taylor, Rt. 3, Box 123-D, West Monroe, withdrew a guilty plea to a felony theft count and pleaded guilty to a misdemeanor theft count. He was sentenced to six months in jail, suspended, and placed on two year's probation.

How To Keep Well

HEART ATTACKS AMONG WOMEN

The frequency of heart attacks among men has tended to obscure the importance of this condition among women. According to the Statistical Bulletin, 212,000 females died of coronary heart disease in 1963. One-fourth of all women die of this disorder.

Most heart attacks are secondary to hardening of the coronary arteries. It is well-known that arteriosclerosis is a problem for women approximately 10 years after it becomes a troublemaker for men. The death rate for females under age 55 is one-fifth that for males in the same age group. Neither is immortal and in time the death rates for both sexes gets closer and closer. At ages 85 and older the ratio is reduced to seven-eighths, but in the interim many more men than women have died.

What protects the female from developing arteriosclerosis for those 10 extra years? It is due in part to her sex hormone (estrogens). These hormones have been used with some success in the long-term therapy of middle - aged men who survived a heart attack. The majority discontinue the product when they develop bosoms.

Some physicians prescribe estrogens after the menopause, hoping to further delay arteriosclerosis. Ovaries are less active. If this were the only cause of hardening of the arteries, the plan might gain wider acceptance among the medical profession.

Overweight increases the risk of developing coronary heart disease. The same can be said of high blood pressure and diabetes. Women are subject to less stress and have that famous safety valve to reduce tension — tears and back fence or bridge discussions.

Coronary artery disease symptoms are the same in both sexes. Chest pain or a felling of pressure beneath the breastbone should not be neglected by a woman just because heart trouble is more common in men.

WEAK OLDSTER

R. B. writes: Is there any way to build up strength in a weak 81-year-old man?

REPLY

Yes. He should be examined for evidence of infections, anemia, and glandular or circulatory disorders. Correctable defects should be attended to, especially if they are sapping his strength. If no abnormalities can be found a physical fitness program will help, particularly the use of an adequate diet.

MENOPAUSAL SYMPTOMS

Mrs. A. writes: Would a person who had a hysterectomy 12 years ago still have symptoms of the menopause?

REPLY

Yes, but you neglected to mention the specific symptoms. As a result, it is possible to blame them on the menopause, nervousness, or both. Send a stamped, self - addressed envelope for a leaflet on the menopause.

COSMETIC DEFECT

P. S. writes: What can be done about those little blood vessels in my legs and thighs?

REPLY

These tiny venules usually are dilations of pre - existing vessels. They are a cosmetic defect and of no health importance. They can be destroyed by electrolysis or injection treatment, but the results are not always satisfactory.

ACNE CONDITION

L. P. writes: What helps alleviate acne?

REPLY

Keep the skin clean and dry by washing frequently with a medicated soap and applying an acne lotion at night.

Today's Health Hint—

Medications should not be kept on night tables.

Profit Taking Day

Mart Declines In Moderate Trading

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market declined slightly in fairly active trading Friday to the surprise of practically no one on Wall Street.

For the previous five sessions the market had established record highs every day in some or all of the popular averages. After every sustained advance of this kind, a day comes for profits to be taken.

The pre-weekend session was the occasion, analysts said. The time was ripe, they added especially in view of the foreign uncertainties.

The Dow Jones industrial average took a minor loss of 1.00 at 932.52.

Volume was 5.86 million shares, regarded by analysts as a factor which took away some of the emphasis on the drop in prices.

The "unwillingness" of the list to go down was reflected in the 1,390 issues traded on the New York Stock Exchange. Of these, losers outnumbered gainers by the modest score of 585 to 524. New highs for the year totaled 116 and new lows 31.

Among the 15 most active stocks, the emphasis was slightly in favor of the plus side, with seven gainers, six losers and two issues unchanged.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks fell 1.1 to 343.6 with industrials off 1.6, rails off .3 and utilities off .7.

Although it was essentially a dull session, Wall Street history was made with the selling of a block of 129,200 shares of Union Carbide at 134, down 3¼. The value of this block was $17,312,800, making it the largest single transaction dollar-wise in the history of the Exchange, officials said.

The previous record for cash value of a single transaction was $10.5 million, representing 191,811 shares of Gulf Oil sold on April 17, 1964. Both blocks were bought by the Exchange specialist firm of Wagner, Stott & Co. The name of the seller or sellers of the Union Carbide block was not made public.

The big block made Union Carbide the day's volume leader. It closed at 135½, off 1¾P on total volume of 139,200 shares.

Lehigh Valley Industries, up ¼ at 4¼ on 103,900 shares, was second most active.

Radio Corp., after making substantial gains as the most active stock of the previous three sessions, weathered some profit taking and managed to close with a net gain of ⅛ as third most active stock.

Pan American Sulphur continued its vigorous comeback, rising ⅞ as one of the volume leaders.

Also strong, General Dynamics (ex dividend) rose 1¼, Douglas Aircraft 1¼, Collins Radio 1⅛, Magnavox ⅞, Korvette ¾ and Interstate Department Stores ⅜.

Brokers saw a continuation of public interest judging by the activity in some of these stocks, and a renewal of favor for discount stores.

The trend among such major groups as the oils, motors, steels and rails was lower, but declines of most of the market wheelhorses were slight.

Among fractional losers were Jersey Standard, General Motors, Bethlehem, Ford, Kennecott, Homestake, Pennsylvania Railroad, American Tobacco and Xerox.

IBM lost 5, U.S. Smelting 1¾.

Prices on the American Stock Exchange were mostly lower. Volume was 2 million shares. Muntz TV was active but unchanged. New Mexico & Arizona Land lost ⅞. O'Okiep Copper rose 2¾.

Ouachita Parish Fire Protection Cost Study Set

A survey to determine the cost of combating fires outside the parish's metropolitan area was inaugurated Friday by a committee appointed by the Ouachita Parish police jury.

A public hearing has also been scheduled, according to Fred Huenefeld Jr., chairman of the Citizen's Fire Study Committee.

He said two subcommittees were appointed from the 19-member committee.

"One subcommittee was to study the cost analysis presented in the Ford, Bacon and Davis report and come back with some recommendations to the committee as a whole," Huenefeld said.

He said another committee will correspond with the state treasurer, Pat Tugwell and the University of Virginia.

This correspondence, Huenefeld said, should yield "information needed to find out what other fire districts are set up in Louisiana to date and also to find the approximate amount of money that would be available in funds to the parish from the Insurance Rating Commission."

Huenefeld explained that a two per cent refund is given a parish for all fire policies written in rural areas of the parish.

He said the University of Virginia could supply information "in regard to some of their county programs" on fire protection.

The public hearing will be held 7:30 p.m. in the police jury room of the parish courthouse. "Any interested citizens will be asked to attend, express their opinions and thoughts," Huenefeld said.

He said "Industry in particular, will be invited to give their recommendations."

Huenefeld said the fire study committee believes that any fire program costs should be analyzed to determine how much millage would be involved.

"It was thought that in numerous places some money could be saved" and still provide "adequate fire protection," he said.

Named chairman of the subcommittee studying the Ford, Bacon and Davis report was Bernon Butler of West Monroe, while Drew Anderson of Monroe was named co-chairman.

"They set their meeting date for Tuesday night, May 11," Huenefeld said, "with Ford, Bacon and Davis project engineers and Fire Chief H. L. Haile."

Also at the meeting Friday, it was decided that sample letters will be mailed to selected citizens of rural Ouachita in an attempt to determine various shades of opinion.

Huenefeld said a report was given at the meeting which showed that 23 fires were answered in the West Monroe area during a three-month period beginning Jan. 1 and that 23 fires were answered on the east side of the Ouachita River in the same period.

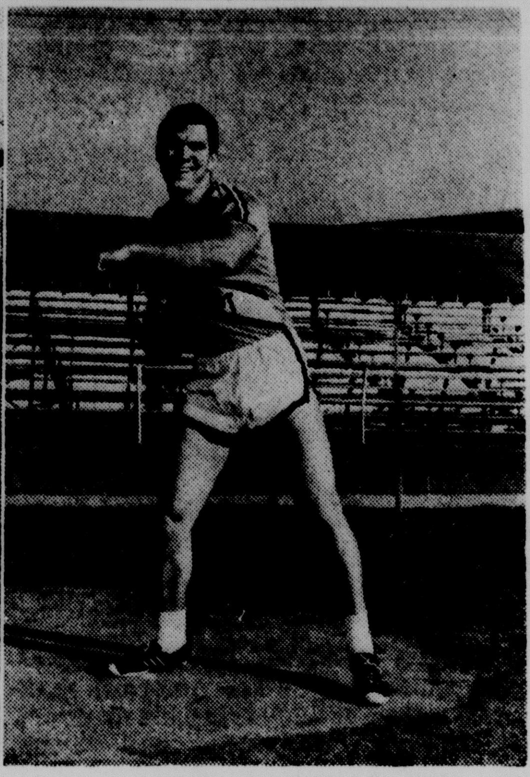
Indians After 6th Track Title



NORTHEAST entries in the field for the Gulf States Conference meet today include Paul Hobgood, left, and Gary Walker. Northeast State, its Gulf States Conference supremacy threatened by the University of Southwestern Louisiana, tries to win its sixth league track and field title in Natchitoches Saturday night.

Preliminaries in several of the track events and finals in two field events — the javelin and triple jump — will be held Saturday morning beginning at 10 in Demon Stadium on the Northwestern State campus. The finals will begin at 7 Saturday night.

Northeast is favored to win the meet and become the first college to win six GSC track titles. Currently the Indians and Northwestern have five championships to their credit, Northeast winning its crowns in 1959, 1960, 1962, 1963 and 1964.

But Southwestern has probably its strongest team in history, one that has already set six school records and tied two more. USL has beaten Northeast once this year, in the Southwestern Relays, and Saturday night's meet should be as close as the 1963 meet at Ruston when Northeast edged the Cajuns, 76¾ to 72.

The race for third place appears to be wide open with any one of the four other league teams — McNeese, Louisiana Tech, Southeastern and Northwestern — capable of taking the first division berth.

Northeast is expected to run up a big lead in the track events with Southwestern to dominate the field events.

Defending champ Ronnie Fountain and Dalton LeBlanc of Northeast are the top entries in the 100. Fountain has run a 9.4 this year and LeBlanc several 9.5's.

Other top contenders in this event are Al Nastasi of USL, Monte Ledbetter of Northwestern and Craig Henry of McNeese, all with 9.6's to their credit.

The same five are top rated in the 220 along with Tech's Reggie Day. Fountain has the conference's best time in this event this year, 21.0.

Willis Delhomme and Cline Averett of Northeast have the league's best times in the 440, 48.1, but Averett has been injured and may not be at full speed. Other good quartermilers are Brian Heinen of McNeese (48.5), Amos Grodjinovsky of Northwestern (48.7) and Ed Domingue of USL (49.1).

Northwestern's Bob Dufalo (1:52.3) and USL's Bill Sirmon (1:52.7) are the top 880 entries with Bobby Keasler (1:53.2), Gayland LeBlanc (1:54.0) and Jim Bodin (1:54.0) of Northeast, Jim Camhout of Southeastern and Tech's Frank Bright other strong entries.

Foreigners are expected to dominate the distance events with Englishman Malcolm Robinson of Southwestern favored to win his third GSC mile title and fourth league two-mile championship.

Robinson has run the mile in 4:10.9 this year and the longer event in 8:53.3. Englishman Eddie Watt (4:14.1) and Irishman Tony Ward (4:14.2) of Northwestern are considered his major challengers in the mile with Bill White (4:17.1) and Robert Harvison (4:18.2) of Northeast and Louis Maraist (4:18.0) other contenders.

In the two-mile, Robinson and Watt (9:17.3) are again top rated with USL's Howard Trahan (9:30.9) and Mickey Sullivan (9:35.0) and Northeast's White (9:34.7) and Tom Brown (9:35.0) other leading entries.

Northeast should get the lion's share of the points in the hurdles with Roger Morgan (13.7, 36.7), Roger Mann (13.7, 36.6) and Fred Vogel (14.4, 36.8). Southeastern's Doug Laiche (14.3) and USL's Bobby Domingue (37.9) are other strong entries. Tech's Allen Carpenter is the defending champ in the intermediate hurdles but has been sidelined with injuries most of the year.

Northeast (40.8) is favored in the 440-yard relay and Southwestern (3:13.1) in the mile relay. USL and Southeastern are other strong 440 entries and Northeast and McNeese should have good teams in the mile.

Indian Jack McDougall (6-7) and USL's Richard Graves (6-4½), a couple of freshmen, are the top high jump entries and Southwestern's James Bohata (48-2½) and McNeese's Al Habetz (48-1½) the best in the triple jump.

Ledbetter is the defending champ and record holder in the broad jump but injuries have limited his effectiveness in this event this year. USL's Terry Segura (23-9¼) and Bohata (23-8½) have the league's best 1965 jumps.

Paul Hobgood of Northeast (15-0) and Segura of USL (14-7) are the pole vault favorites with Gary Johnson of Northwestern and Eddie McGinnis of McNeese both having gone 14-6. John Linta of Northeast has gone 15-0 indoors but only 14-0 outdoors.

Probably the strongest favorite in the meet is Northwestern's Dick Reding in the shot put. Reding has a 53-6 heave to his credit, six feet more than second best.

Last year Northeast won the GSC meet with 85½ points, Tech has 42½, Northwestern 41½, McNeese 41, Southwestern 38½ and Southeastern 36.

Indian Netters Take 3rd Title

By KEITH PRINCE
World Sports Editor

NATCHITOCHES — Northeast State's "big three" of the tennis courts — Margo Alvarez, Richard Campbell and Jim Baudin — put on a dazzling display here Friday afternoon in the finals of the Gulf States Conference Tournament, taking firsts in the number one, two and three singles and the number one doubles, to present NLSC with its third straight net championship.

The Tribe finished with 20 points, on the basis of five points for a first place and three for a runner - up position, while Southwestern and Southeastern tied for second with 15 each. Northwestern and Louisiana Tech had three each and McNeese failed to score any points.

The climatic series of victories could not have been more impressive had they been won in Madison Square Garden before a throng of thousands. So efficient were the Tribe netters that they won all four matches in straight sets. And so smoothly did they play that it appeared that anyone of the three could have won against any other opponent in the conference.

Alvarez, the little man from Mexico with the friendly smile and the big heart, stopped Southeastern's highly touted Harold Buquoi, 6-3, 10-8, after coming from 1-5 down in the second set to conquer the Lions' top man.

Campbell was little short of superb in his 6-3, 6-4 triumphs over Northwestern jumping-jack Danny Walker. It was the third straight time this year that Campbell, quite possibly one of the two best netters in the league, had disposed of his onetime prep school teammate easily; and, last year Walker made it all the way to the number one singles finals before losing to Alvarez.

But even more impressive than either Alvarez or Campbell, who teammed up to win over SLC 6-3, 6-2 in the doubles finals, was big Jim Baudin. The junior transfer from Fla. was a tiger Friday and his 6-1, 6-0 win over Arnold Ott of SLC proves it. His serves were simply overpowering, his long game was unstoppable — and when Ott did manage to return a shot there was Baudin at the net ready to place it just out of reach.

There is little doubt but what this third title was possibly the sweetest of all for Coach Ralph Lane's troups — for the Indians went into the meet picked to finish behind Southeastern's Lions.

The four victories for Northeast in Friday's finals have to be labeled as the top clutch performances by Tribe netters in the school's young tennis history.

After the number two doubles team was knocked out in the morning semi - final round, the Indians were faced with the task of winning all four remaining matches in the finals or losing its title.

Although each victory was imperative, it was Alvarez's triumph over Buquoi that was the key.

The two players had met only once before, during regular season play, and Buquoi had won in straight sets. However, the biggest fear in the Northeast camp came not from the expected play of Buquoi, but rather from the leg cramps which hit Alvarez in his semi-final conquest of Northwestern's Lloyd Wallace Thursday afternoon. In fact, Alvarez had to serve underhand in his last game against Wallace because the strain of raising on his toes was unbearable.

This was the situation facing the two - time GSC singles champ going into Friday's finals. But the leg cramps bothered him only slightly against Buquoi and he played like the undefeated Margo of 1964.

After a near-flawless first set against Buquoi, Margo began the second set with several near misses and the SLC star used some fine play of his own to grab a 4-0 lead. Two games later the score was 5 - 1 for Buquoi and some started talking of the third set. But not Alvarez.

He kept hustling, scrapping and suddenly his shots began to find the corners and, after being bothered by a couple of double faults early in the set, he came on target with his serves. Quickly it was even, 5-5. And from here on, Alvarez was the aggressor and Buquoi the defender. Although the Lion star used his chopping returns to stay alive time and again, Margo's placement shots soon wore him down and Alvarez had his third straight title.

Campbell was equally awesome in his display of shots and the victory over Walker looked easy. But no victory over "the loudest Demon" is easy. Walker, a Shreveport Byrd High product like Campbell, is one of the top crowd attractions no matter where he plays because of his voice antics and continual hustle which often results in successful return shots from a prone position or with his back to the net.

But, despite the usual Walker effort, Campbell was too much and his shots kept his opponent off balance most of the time.

Grambling Tigs Win Two Games To Close Slate

GRAMBLING (Special) — Grambling closed its baseball season Friday by winning a doubleheader from Mississippi Valley College, 4-0 and 6-3.

Alex Pero, Louis Jones, and Tyrone Woods, sneaked a weird assortment of curves knuckles and fastballs past bewildered MVC batters to register 18 strike outs in the opener.

Four Tiger chuckers stiffled the visitors in the nightcap.

Bennie Harris and Bob Williams hit homers for Grambling. Williams blow was a grand slammer. Mississippi Valley had only sporadic occasion for raising the blood pressure during the gruilling afternoon.

Most of the enthusiasm was generated by a solor homer by Jim Denham.

PAT REMILLARD, North America's oldest active jockey, escaped injury earlier this week at Fort Erie Jockey Club when a 3-year-old filly named Jiveoli caromed off the rail, dislodging Remillard from the saddle. The 59-year-old jockey held on to the reins, was whipped around the horse's neck, clung there for an instant and then fell to the track. The mishap came twenty yards from the wire in the first race, when the horse was in front by a length. (AP Wirephoto)

Double Muscle Pull

Mantle's Dime Store Legs Source Of Trouble Again

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mickey Mantle, the New York Yankees' $100,000 outfielder, is once again having trouble with his dime store legs.

The latest problem, which likely will keep Mantle out of the entire series against the Washington Senators, is a double pull of the muscles in his right leg.

Mantles' name was placed in the starting line-up by Manager Johnny Keane for the first game of Friday night's doubleheader at Washington, but Mantle scratched himself when he was unable to run.

The Yankee slugger appeared as a pinch hitter in the eighth inning and took only three or four steps toward first base after hitting a liner that shortstop Ed Brinkman knocked down. Mantle, in obvious pain, then limped back to the dugout.

Mantle has been troubled with the leg since a doubleheader in New York last Sunday. He played nine innings in both games, rare for him, and was limping in the last inning or two of the nightcap.

He has two knots, or bumps, on the right leg and according to the Yankees' trainer if he tried to play he might pull the whole leg severely.

Mantle has been plagued by leg injuries during his career and underwent his most recent operation after the 1963 season for the removal of loose cartilage in his left knee. Last season Mantle hit .303 with 35 homers and 111 runs batted in.

Giusi Wins Fifth For Astros, 5-4

CHICAGO (AP) — Dave Giusi won his fifth straight game for Houston with relief help from Jim Owens in beating Chicago 5-4 Friday on a three-run homer by Bob Aspromonte.

Giusi, lifted in the seventh after he allowed a single to Dick Bertell and walked pinch hitter Doug Clemens, helped his own cause with a two-run double off loser Lew Burdette in the second inning.

Rookie shortstop Bobby Pena's ninth error of the year, a fumble of John Bateman's grounder, opened the gates for the Astros in the second. Eddie Kasko singled and Giusi, unbeaten this year, followed with a double past third base.

Ernie Bank's fifth homer, a three-run blast that lifted his major league leading runs batted in total to 28, followed a single by George Altman and a walk to Ron Santo in the first. Altman also homered in the third.

Aspromonte's homer in the fifth was preceded by singles by Al Spangler and Walt Bond.

Pinch Home Run Plus Triple Put Yankees Under

WASHINGTON (AP) — Jim King's pinch hit two-run homer in the first game and Frank Howard's bases-loaded triple in the nightcap vaulted Washington to a 4-3 and 7-3 sweep of the New York Yankees in a twi-night doubleheader Friday.

The double defeat dropped the Yankees' record to 8-12, putting them into ninth place in the American League.

King's blast in the opener followed Willie Kirkland's single that led off the seventh. It was King's first homer of the season.

Clete Boyer's homer had given the Yankees a 3-2 lead in the fifth.

New York threatened in the ninth against Mike McCormick, who had a three-hitter going into the inning.

But Ronnie Kline relieved McCormick after Bobby Richardson singled and Tom Tresh doubled, walked Hector Lopez intentionally and then got out of the jam by retiring Tony Kubek on a foul pop and Arturo Lopez on a fly out.

Don Zimmer started the rally with a single and moved around to third on Don Blasingame's bunt single and a sacrifice bunt. Pedro Ramos came in and walked Don Lock before Howard clouted the bases-clearing triple to right field. Woodie Held followed with a two-run homer.

Louisiana Tech Golfers Enter Amateur Affair

RUSTON (Special) — Two Louisiana Tech golfers will play in a qualifying round of the Louisiana State Amateur Golf tournament at the East Ridge Country Club in Shreveport June 9.

Ray Mulhern, standout Tech freshman from Monroe, and Scott Myers, freshman from Shreveport, will play in the qualifying round.

Clayton Cole, son of club professional Winnie Cole of the Bayou DeSiard Country Club in Monroe, won the 1965 state amateur title and will defend his title in Shreveport.

The low 32 scorers in the qualifying round will comprise the championship flight which will compete over 72 holes of stroke play for the championship. All other flights will consist of 16 golfers playing match play over 18 holes.

The tourney is scheduled at the East Ridge Country Club in Shreveport June 10-13. In addition to the state amateur title, golfers will be shooting for one of the 10 places on the amateur team in the Louisiana Cup Matches against a similar team of the low 10 professional finalists in the Louisiana Open.

These Cup Matches will be held at the Timberlane Country Club in Gretna Oct. 31. Last year the amateurs trimmed the pros 32½-12½.

The Canadians will play the U.S. team in the North American Zone matches June 4-6 at Bakersfield, Calif.

Skeet Shooting Slated Sunday

Byrd Tracksters Grab 14th Crown

SHREVEPORT (Special) — Byrd High School's cinder scythe cut down its opponents for the 14th straight year in the District 1-AAA track meet Friday night on the Bossier High oval as seven records and two were tied.

The Byrdmen of Coach Woodrow Turner set new standards in five events including a sensational 3:18.3 clocking in the mile relay, the best time by a prep foursome in state history. West Monroe broke two and tied two.

West Monroe, as predicted, was the Yellow Jackets strongest challenger, nabbing the runner-up honors with 69 points. The Byrdmen compiled 97. Neville was third with 41 and Woodlawn edged Fair Park out of fourth place, 33-31½. Bossier was sixth with 17 and Ouachita last with 11½. Bastrop, the other loop school, did not send a team to Bossier.

The Byrd foursome of Jim Hughes, Charles Beasley, Dick Brook and Greg Falk posted the sizzling mile relay time, but the Byrdmen received a jolt when the Rebs from West Monroe nudged them out in a record breaking 440 yard relay.

The West Monroe quartet of Gary Brewster, Danny Perkins, Chip Thompson, and Steve West streaked to a 42.8 clocking in the 440. Byrd had taken the opening relay race, the 880, in the record time of 1:28.9 with anchor man Skip Hardcastle finishing only about a step ahead of his West Monroe pursuer.

Red-haired sophomore sensation, Larry Beebe of West Monroe whose previous best time was 1:58.0, took the lead in the exciting 880 yard run from the outset, held it until the back side of the second lap when Byrd's Ran Smith edged past him, then kicked past the Yellow Jacket for a sizzling 1:55.5, a new loop record and best time in the state by a prepster this year.

Another major surprise in the meet was the javelin victory of Woodlawn's Terry Bradshaw over West Monroe's favored Ray Alexander. Alexander has the state's second best toss, a 211-6 heave, while Bradshaw's previous beat throw was only 188-1. Trailing going into his last throw, the blonde Woodlawn youngster reached back for a little extra to beat Alexander, 200 feet to 197-6½.

Both Tad Price and Owen Self of Byrd with practically no opposition from the rest of the field, both broke the old 4:33.2 mile record set by Price last year. Price won in 4:27.5 with Self hitting the tape in 4:28.6.

Stewart Blue of Byrd lowered the old 120 yard high hurdles mark with a 14.6 clocking. Jim Hughes charged to a record 49.2 in the 440 yard dash while West Monroe's Chip Thompson tied both the 1-AAA dash standard clocking a 9.9 in the century and a 22.0 in the 220.

Byrd qualified 11 individuals and three relay teams next week while the Rebels got eight individuals and three relay squads into the meet.

The Byrd mile relay squad lowered the old record in that event by better than five seconds while Beebe's time was almost two seconds better than the previous mark.

Stewart Blue was the meet's only triple winner, taking first in both hurdles and the discus.

The top two finishers in each event qualified for the state meet.

Fifth Victory

Gibson Pitches Cards' 1-Hitter

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Bob Gibson pitched a one-hitter, allowing only a fourth inning single by Johnny Callison, and the St. Louis Cardinals made the most of two Philadelphia errors for a 2-0 victory over the Phillies Friday night.

Gibson, who has yet to lose, posted his fifth victory and his third shutout of the season while beating left-hander Chris Short.

Short, now 4-2, was the victim of Philadelphia's erratic fielding as errors by Cookie Rojas and Dick Stuart contributed to the Cardinals' decisive two-run seventh inning.

With one out in the seventh, Julian Javier beat out a slow roller to short and raced to third when Rojas threw wild. Lou Brock's single scored Javier.

Curt Flood then grounded out but Stuart tried to get Brock, who was trying for third, and the Phillie first baseman heaved it wild. Brock scored on the play.

The Phillies have made 25 errors in their last 14 games.

Callison's hit off Gibson was a clean single to right center. Gibson struck out eight and walked three.

Saldivar KO's Paul Rojas To Defend Crown

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Mexico's Vicente Saldivar retained his world featherweight championship Friday night, knocking out previously unbeaten Raul Rojas of San Pedro, Calif., with 10 seconds remaining in the 15th and final round.

Referee Tommy Hart stepped in to stop the savage beating as a crowd of 15,000 or more was in a state of frenzy in Los Angeles Memorial Coliseum.

The 22-year-old Saldivar, 124¾, thus successfully defended for the first time the title he won last Sept. 26 when he dealt much the same type of defeat to Sugar Ramos in Mexico City.

Rojas, 125½, was nveer knocked down.

Saldivar sent the stocky Mexican-American reeling through the ropes in his own corner in the wild 15th round, but the referee held Vicente back and helped Rojas back through the ropes.

Qualify 11 For State

Trojans Win District 2-A Crown 2nd Year

By BOB CARROLL
World Sports Writer

Coach Harry Morton's Tallulah Trojans wrapped up the District 2-A track title for the second straight year at Brown Stadium Friday night, qualifying for 11 events in the upcoming state meet to be held at Louisiana Tech next Friday.

The top two finishers in each event go to the state.

Although not quite scoring the 100 markers that they rolled up last year in winning the district meet, the Trojans countered a nine-point deficit in the field events to wipe out hard contending LaSalle's bid with a strong track showing for a total of 82 points and erased four of the seven altered meet records on the way.

LaSalle, which led after the field round with 27 markers to Tallulah's 18, came in a distant second with 48 1-3 points. Winnsboro, who trailed LaSalle in the field with 24 points, managed only a total of 38 1-3, good enough for third place.

The remainder of the points went to Delhi, 34; Vidalia, 30 1-3; Oak Grove, 25 1-3; Lake Providence, 23; Caldwell 17; and Rayville 1 1-3.

Records claimed by Tallulah included Mike Luckett's marks in both the high and low hurdles, erasing the standrads he set in 1963 as a sophomore. He cleared the highs in 15.0, one-tenth of a second better than his previous mark, and raced over the low timbers in 20.6, also one-tenth of a second better than in 1963.

Another Trojan record came in the 440-yard relay, where Woody Cagnolatti, Artie Bray, Luckett and Mickey Smith stepped off a time of 44.0, to cut five-tenths of a second off the time run by Tallulah last year.

Trojan miler Randy Morgan crossde the finish line in 4:40.6, bettering the 4:42.5 mark set by Phillip Mapp, LaSalle, last year.

Delhi's Claude Williams, who has been hampered with a pulled leg muscle all year, came back to tie his record of 10.1, set in 1963, in winning the 100-yard dash. He also won the 220 in 22.7, but fell short of a record by five-tenths of a second.

The other three standards set Friday night were in the field, with Vidalia's crew taking two of them and Winnsboro the other. Viking strongman James Poteet heaved the shot 50-5, erasing the mark of 47-3½ set only last year by F. Andrews of Ferriday. Robert Forrester added the other Vidalia record performance when he cleared the bar at 13-0 to win the pole vault with a mark two feet bettter than the meet's second oldest mark of 173-0, set by T. Brocato, Ferriday, in 1958.

Other double winners besides Luckett, and Williams were the Trojans' Randy Morgan who ran the 880 in 2:01.5 and came back to step off the mile in record time; and Poteet, who won the discus with a toss of 138-10¼ after setting the record shot mark.

Tallulah also qualified its 880-yard relay team for the state, winning that event in 1:31.7, with LaSalle placing second, and had Mickey Smith qualify in the 440 with a winning time of 52.4, just in front of Winnsboro's Ronnie Winborne. Cagnolatti placed second in the 220.

Others qualifying for the state were Gary Vanderberg, Oak Grove, second in the high hurdles and low hurdles; Damon Bradford, LaSalle, in the 100; Iley Evans, Caldwell, in the 880; LaSalle's 440-yd. relay team; Tommy Smith, Oak Grove, in the mile run; Delhi's winning mile relay team and Lake Providence's second place squad.

Ralph McCurdy, Lake Providence, won the high jump, and Jerry Babcock, LaSalle, was second. Others include Archie Pippin, Winnsboro, in the shot; Willie Holley, Oak Grove, who won the high jump with a leap of 5-8, and second finisher Don Parker, Oak Grove; Don Morton, Tallulah, in the pole vault; Donald Rich, Tallulah, in the javelin; Denny Taylor, Winnsboro, in the discus; and Jerry Babcock, LaSalle, who won the triple jump in 43-11.

Top Twins, 13-5

Cater Powers White Sox Win

ST. PAUL-MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Danny Carter's three-run homer in the seventh inning was the deciding blow in a four-homer attack that powered the Chicago White Sox to a 13-5 victory over Minnesota Friday night.

The Twins led 5-4 in the seventh when Don Buford walked, Tom McCraw doubled and Cater followed with his homer, a shot that just carried over the left field fence.

Ron Hansen, Al Weis and Pete Ward also homered for the White Sox while Harmon Killebrew connected for the Twins.

The Twins helped the White Sox with seven errors—three in the eighth and three in the ninth as the White Sox padded their lead. Eddie Fisher, meanwhile, blanked Minnesota over the final three innings, preserving the victory for rookie Bob Locker.

Killebrew's homer gave the Twins a 3-0 lead in the first inning, but Weis doubled home two runs in the second after singles by Ward and Hansen. Then, in the fourth, Hansen and Weis homered for a 4-3 Chicago lead.

Harmon Strip Set For 2nd Week's Run

A field in the neighborhood of 250 cars is expected to appear at the Harmon Raceway this Sunday for the second week's menu of drag racing for the track which opened only last week.

Whit Alger, track director, reports entries from all parts of the South including some of the better cars in this part of the country.

Heading the list will be factory experimental cars, a Mustang 2 plus 2 with the 427 cubic inch motor; and a 1965 Dodge, powered with the Hemi engine.

Clester Andrews, well known driver around the racing circles, will be behind the wheel of the Wickersham sponsored Mustang, and will be driving against Clyde Robilland, Baton Rouge, in the Dodge.

For those who like the acid smell of burning nitro, a pair of fuel dragsters will appear at the track. Buddy Roller will bring his 301 blown Chevy dragster to run against Douglas Mead of Lake Charles in his 401 Chrysler powered monster.

Doc Eiland, Shreveport, who made a good showing in his AA-Altered last week, will be back again this week trying to set a new record in his class on the Harmon strip, which after just one run, is gaining a reputation of being one of the best.

The list of entries include several modified production cars, numerous stock models, and gasers, all competing for trophies, and some trying for new speed records.

Two-Under-Pars Highlight Play At Shreveport

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP) — Kathy Whitworth and Sandra McClinton had two-under-par 70s at the Palmetto Country Club Friday to take the first round lead in the $8,500 Shreveport-Kiwanis LPGA Invitational Golf Tourney.

Miss Whitworth, leading money winner on this year's LPGA tour, was one-over at 37 after nine holes but hit birdie putts of 25, 6 and 15 feet on the 14th, 15th and 17th holes to come in with a 33.

Miss McClinton, seeking her first LPGA tour victory, equalled her best score ever on the circuit with her 70. She had a 70 earlier this year at St. Petersburg, Fla.

Veteran Patty Berg, Betsy Rawls, Betsy Cullen, Marilynn Smith, and Ruth Jessen were tied for third with 71s.

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Manny Mota's two-out single drove in Gene Freese in the ninth inning, climaxing a three-run rally and giving Pittsburgh a 5-4 triumph over Cincinnati Friday night.

Cincinnati's Billy McCool helped the Pirates start the outburst by walking leadoff batter Gene Alley. After pinch hitter Bill Mazeroski fouled out, Dick Schofield singled Alley to second.

Dick Tracewski Singles To Win For Los Angeles

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Dick Tracewski singled in the winning run in the eighth inning Friday night as the Los Angeles Dodgers edged the San Francisco Giants 4-3 despite two homers by Willie Mays.

Tracewski's single off reliever Bill Henry scored Willie Crawford from second. Crawford, running for John Roseboro who led off the eighth with his third hit, reached second on Jim Lefebvre's sacrifice.

The victory went to Dodger southpaw Claude Osteen, who yielded solo homers to Mays the first two times he faced him. They were Nos. 9 and 10 for the Giant center field.

The homers gave Mays five in the last four games.

The Dodgers overcame May's two homers with three runs in the fifth on four singles, a wild pitch, a walk and an outfield error.

Set In Maine

Heavyweight Bout Is Moved From Boston

BOSTON (AP) — The Cassius Clay-Sonny Liston heavyweight title fight was transferred Friday from Boston to Lewiston, Maine, and scheduled for the same date, May 25.

The shift was announced after two days of litigation in Suffolk Superior Court where Dist. Atty. Garrett H. Byrne sought an injunction to block the fight in Boston.

Byrne charged that Inter-Continental Promotions, Inc., of Chester, Pa., was promoting the fight without a Massachusetts license. Inter-Continental said the bout was being promoted by Sam Silverman, a licensed promoter.

Gov. John H. Reed of Maine said Atty. Gen. Richard F. Dubord has "assured me that he anticipates no legal problems" in Lewiston.

The shift to a site in Maine was announced here by Paul T. Smith, an attorney representing Inter-Continental in the injunction suit before Judge Felix Forte. An Inter-Continental spokesman later announced the site would be Lewiston.

Lewiston is a manufacturing city 140 miles north of Boston and 30 miles from Portland, Maine. It has a population of 41,000. The adjoining sister city of Auburn has 28,000.

The fight will be staged in Lewiston's Youth Center, which can seat 5,500. The promoters had not counted on a large ringside gate because the fight had been planned for the Boston Garden, which seats 13,909.

The biggest portion of the $4 million gate will come from closed-circuit television showings in theaters across the country.

The fight originally was scheduled for last Nov. 16 in Boston, but was postponed when Clay underwent emergency hernia surgery.

Both the champion and Liston had set up Massachusetts training camps, Liston at a motel and office building in Dedham, south of Boston, and Clay at a motel in Chicopee in the Connecticut River Valley.

Byrne was criticized for waiting to act until less than three weeks before the fight date. He explained he had come into possession of information which he did not have previously, and that his investigation would continue despite the change in site.

Byrne declined to disclose any details and said some of this information may have to be presented to a grand jury.

The rules of the Maine Boxing Commission permit an outside promoter to hold fights in Maine after obtaining a permit from the commission and making an agreement with a Maine-licensed promoter.

The Maine promoter will be Sam Michael of Lewiston, who has promoted fights in the past.

Reed said Maine is "very pleased that Inter-Continental. . . has made the decision to come to Maine for this spectacular international event."

Bob Nilon, president of Inter-Continental, said "We will exert every effort to make this the greatest fight ever."

The Massachusetts Boxing Commission, which had approved the fight for Boston, said in a statement "it is unfortunate to lose this great sporting event."

"The commission had felt it was being promoted in accordance with the spirit and tenor of our laws."

The commission said it will meet next week with Massachusetts Atty. Gen. Edward W. Brooke to see if any changes are required in the commission rules and regulations or in state law.

The courtroom battle over Byrne's petition for an injunction ended when lawyers for all parties agreed to a stipulation that the fight would not be held in Boston. When that was presented to the court, Judge Forte adjourned the case to May 26 — the day after the fight — when he said it can be discontinued.

Harold Conrad, spokesman for Inter-Continental, went to Maine for Gov. Reed's announcement, and told newsmen there that Liston probably will move to the Poland Spring House for final training. Poland Spring is only 10 miles from Lewiston.

At Chicopee, Clay's manager, Angelo Dundee, said the champion will remain there for training.

"There's no sense in moving from where we are now," Dundee said. "The champion likes this place and we intend to stay righ here and complete our training."

The Lewiston fight site is an eight-year-old building operated by the Catholic Dominican fathers in the center of Lewiston.

The Maine Boxing Commission had been a member of the World Boxing Association, which does not recognize Clay as the champion. The WBA recognized Ernie Terrell of Chicago.

The Maine commission broke with the WBA last January over the Clay issue. Duncan McDonald of Bangor, a member of the commission, said Maine hasn't paid its 1965 WBA dues and recognition of this fight means its WBA membership is terminated.

Crampton's 68 Deadlocks Colonial Tournament Play

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — Bruce Crampton swept in with a two-under-par 68 Friday to force a 36-hole deadlock with George Knudson in the internationally-flavored Colonial National Invitation Golf Tournament.

Crampton, ignoring the gusty winds that raked the treacherous 7,132-yard Colonial course, fired a 33-35 for a one-under-par total of 139.

Knudson dipped three shots under par at one point but bogeyed the 13th and 15th on the home stretch and rambled into the clubhouse with a 34-37—71.

Crampton, a stylish Australian, had birdie putts of 8, 10 and 30 feet and faltered only once, at the 17th where a wayward tee shot and a sand trap added up to a bogey five.

Knudson, the slender Canadian who registered a superb 66 in the pro-am, made the turn in one-under 34 and appeared en route to sole possession of the second-round lead before his bogey mishaps.

The foreigners have a one-stroke lead over champagne Tony Lema, who posted a 69, Julius Boros, a former Colonial winner who matched Crampton's 68, Ben Hogan and Gene Littler.

Hogan once again lost an opportunity to snatch a share of the lead. A five-time Colonial winner, Hogan missed a 12-foot putt on the final green that would have given him a par 70. Thursday he three-putted to miss the top slot.

In Tide's Spring Tilt

Computers May Be Needed Today

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (AP) — Bring on the computers!

They may be needed when Alabama's 1965 football team, an unknown quantity right now, completes spring training tonight with an intra - squad contest which could see the final score read like the game was played on a basketball court.

That's not all. The defensive team might win.

Coach Paul Bryant, who guided his 1964 team to the national special set of scoring rules for this year's annual Red-White intra-squad game.

The squad is divided into Red and White teams for the contest. The Red unit will be on the offensive all the time, the White on defense.

The scoring rules, however, favor the defense. For example, three points for causing a fumble; six points for blocking a kick, three points for a 15-yard penalty against the offense; two points for halting the offense inside the five-yard line, and so on. Scoring rules are normal for the attack team.

"The rules put emphasis on what wins—fumbles, kicks, interceptions," Bryant said. He has assigned his assistant coaches to supervise the opposing units and will not participate in the sideline duties.

It's no secret Bryant was displeased with his defensive units' over-all performance last season, and especially in the Crimson Tide's 21-17 Orange Bowl loss to Texas. Saturday night's special rules put a premium on defensive performance.

However, Bryant says that is applying the rules "because we really have no choice.

"We tried to play the game the normal way. But after putting the entire squad by positions up on the blackboard, we found that we had so many injuries at key positions that we were not able to have two teams that can play both ways."

New rules which permit almost unlimited substitution also have put a crimp in his operations, Bryant said. He said Alabama would have a better football team for 1965 under the old one- platoon rules.

This is considered a rebuilding year for the Crimson Tide, which lost 15 lettermen, including ace quarterback Joe Namath. There are about 60 sophomores on squad.

Tiant Tosses 5 Hitter As Tribe Betters Boston

BOSTON (AP) — Luis Tiant pitched a five-hitter Friday night in leading Cleveland to a 5-1 triumph over Boston.

Consecutive doubles by Lennie Green and Dalton Jones ruined a shutout for Tiant in the eighth inning. The only Red Sox safeties off him earlier were Tony Conigliaro's leadoff single in the third and Bob Tillman's blooper in the fifth.

Crosley Teacher Honored

The retirement of Mrs. Bertha Inabnet Roussel from active teaching was the occasion for a dinner in her honor at the Paragon Club on Wednesday, May 5. She began her teaching career in Fairbanks during the 1921-22 school session.

Hosts for the party were faculty members of Crosley Elementary School. Mrs. Roussel has taught at Crosley for forty-two years, coming there in 1923 as the third grade teacher. Her length of service to the school is the longest held by any teacher.

During the two years Mrs. Roussel taught the first, second and third grades in Fairbanks, the Superintendent of schools was T. O. Brown.

At Crosley, she has taught under principals J. A. Rainbolt, G. W. Welch, Lake Oxford, J. W. Rutledge, Wood Sers and the present principal Danny Sullivan.

A large centerpiece of red and white gladiolas decorated the table during the dinner, while white candles burned in crystal candelabra, circled with garlands of ivy and gladiola buds.

Wearing a red silk two piece ensemble, accented by a white orchid corsage, Mrs. Roussel was presented a gift of silver by Mrs. Lynton Culpepper, one of the committee in charge of arrangements for the dinner. Others on the committee were Mrs. Dollie Douglas and Mrs. Prentice Gaston.

Stylish Trick, Match Flowers With Fashions

This is the spring of surprises. A new excitement in feminine flattery comes from fashion "extras", impulsive as spring showers. Fashions for the season are free and easy—ready for action with new, unexpected accessories of spring.

All of a sudden, fashion blooms like springtime itself—bright colors, dashing scarves, and fresh, fragrant flowers — all casual and carefree. Match your flowers with fashions new action styles, FTD florists advise, by letting flowers bloom in unlikely places. Buttonhole a bright, white daisy in the lapel of your Spring suit or blazer for example. Let a trio of daffodils peek out of pockets, or pop out of buckles on new wide belts. Another fashion trick with flowers: tie a tiny sprig of blossoms to the handle of your handbag, and blend the blossoms to the color of your costume.

This season, scarves are everywhere in a spring splash of pattern — bold bands of stripes, bigger-than-ever polka dots, prim paisleys and op-art prints. Tresses are tied in the new turban scarves or covered with tiny triangles. Easy shifts lead a second life — just change the neckline with a lazy loop of a scarf. Dress like a dandy with a kerchief tucked in the big patches of pockets on new skirts and tops. Trail a filmy scarf from your purse or simply carry it casually — flowing and free as the liberated lines of springtime fashions.

When it comes to this season's jewelry, everybody's getting the bug. No pun intended — fauna is in fashion. Enameled pins take shape as lady-bugs, beetles, bees and butterflies. Pin them on in an off - hand manner — diagonally on your collar or perched on your shoulder. It's the season of nonchalance, so blossom out with the fresh, new signs of Spring.

Two Northeast Sororities Hold Annual Spring Balls

PHI MU

Phi Mu sorority of Northeast State climaxed the year's social activities with the traditional pink carnation ball, a formal affair held on the Frances Hotel roof.

Members, their dates and special guests registered at a table accented by a small pink basket filled with pink and white daisies. An antique low holder, encircled with English ivy, bore a single pink taper.

Couples danced beneath a canopy of pink streamers radiating from a cluster of matching balloons and reaching to chandeliers from which ribbons with carnations were suspended.

Tall standards in the ball room overflowed with glistening foliage and large pink carnations, the sorority's official flower.

Tables held miniature May poles on white circular styrofoam bearing Phi Mu Greek letters in pink. Running the length of the tables were sprays of ivy.

Alpha Rho chapter's president, Miss Jeanne Rowan, paid tribute to Miss Eleanor Harmon, outgoing president, and presented her with an arm bouquet of pink carnations. She also recognized Miss Til Wright, who chairmaned the dance committee.

As couples were introduced by Miss Rowan, she and her escort, Lawson Swearingen, gave favors, porcelain study lamps bearing the sorority creed and inscription, Phi Mu Carnation Ball, 1965.

ALPHA OMICRON PI

Lambda Tau chapter of Alpha Omicron Pi sorority ended the social season with its annual spring formal at the Paragon Club, where Phares Corder and His Orchestra provided music for the Rose Ball.

As the guests arrived, they were greeted with the fragrance of bouquets which graced each table. Large magnolia blossoms and glistening leaves intertwined the wrought iron railing which encircled the dance floor. Oak trees served as a background for the orchestra, and on either side were a single mammoth red rose and the sorority Greek letters.

Highlight of the evening was the grand march of Northeast State collegiates and their dates, who were presented attractive favors, China cookie jars decorated with AOPi Greek letters.

Another feature was the recognition of Miss Alice Butler of Monroe, who has served as president. She was given an arm bouquet of red roses by the new president, Miss Pat Twiner of Sunshine, and complimented for her contribution to the sorority.

DEAR ABBY

A Wise Minister Had Answer To Her Query

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My husband is a clergyman. He is young, handsome, warm-hearted and understanding. He is constantly being called upon to help poor frustrated women work out marital problems.

My problem: How do I handle love-starved women who transfer their affections to my husband? Women who feel that he can fill the need in their lives for affection and understanding. He never visits women in their homes unless their husbands are present. But some women stop him on the street, come to his office and even to his home. Everywhere I go, I hear how "lucky" I am to be married to such a wonderful man. What can I do?

PARSON'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: Are you bragging or complaining? I once knew a clergyman who was all the things your husband was. Many women attempted to transfer their affections to him, but he was a past master at rerouting them. He told them in his most ministerial tone that they should emulate Benjamin Franklin, and go fly a kite.

DEAR ABBY: I dialed a wrong number by mistake and this man who answered had such a nice, friendly voice I talked to him for about an hour. He said he was 33 and not married. He also told me lots of other interesting things about himself. He's been in the service and has been practically all over the world. Toward the end he even got a little romantic and said he would like to meet me in person. I am only 17 but I look much older. I didn't give him my telephone number but I told him my name. He gave me his phone number and his first name, but not his last. Should I call him? I would really like to meet him.

"TELEPHONE SWEETHEART"

DEAR SWEETHEART: This man sounds as though he would make a lovely stranger. Keep it that way. Anonymous telephone trysts are shabby and dangerous. Unless you want to live shabbily and dangerously, forget you ever heard his voice.

DEAR ABBY: Why does my wife always take the kids' side against me? I told our older boy he couldn't have the car because he failed two subjects. The very next day my wife gave him permission to take the car. She said she wanted him to do some "errands" for her, but he kept the car all day and didn't get back with it until midnight.

This morning I told our 16-year-old daughter she could not go to her girl friend's slumber party because at the last one the police were called to pull the boys off the side of the house. Well, my wife told her she could go!

It looks like my wife is trying to cut me down in front of the kids just to be ugly. I would like your opinion on this.

DAILY READER

DEAR READER: No wonder so many children are confused about what's "right" and what's "wrong." Parents should never right in front of their children, even if one must give in knowing he's right. It's the responsibility of parents to make the "rules" for their children to follow, and to support each other in enforcing those rules. You and your wife need to iron out your own differences. She is probably punishing you for something that has nothing to do with the children.

DEAR ABBY: Is it still "in style" for a young man to ask the father of a young lady for her hand in marriage, or isn't that done any more? Our children, who are 19 and 21, tell us that this is "corny" and we are old-fashioned to expect it. We would like your opinion.

OLD-FASHIONED PARENTS

DEAR PARENTS: It may be "corny" but there's a kernel of good manners there. It is usually a friendly visit in which the young man tells the girl's father how he intends to provide for her. It's only a formality, however. When a fellow asks for a lady's "hand," he usually has both feet in the door.

For her wedding the bride wore a blue brocade dress with brief veil headdress and a corsage of white cymbidium orchids.

Miss Mary Ann Page, sister of the bride, who served as maid of honor, wore a pink dress and a white cymbidium orchid corsage. Donald Elmore, uncle of the bridegroom, was best man.

Bill To Request Third Assistant D. A. For Parish

A bill will be sponsored in the fiscal session by the Ouachita delegation to provide a third assistant district attorney for Ouachita Parish, according to Dist. Atty. Albin P. Lassiter.

He said another bill had been drafted to return the title of property now occupied by the Ouachita Vocational - Technical Trade School to the Ouachita School Board. The trade school is located adjacent to West Monroe High School.

Lassiter, who has two assistants in Ouachita and one in Morehouse, said the police jury had approved the addition of a third assistant. He said the parish and state would pay the salary.

The district attorney's office handled about 3800 cases in Ouachita Parish last year, and their work load has tripled in the past 10 years.

Gilbert Brown and Robert Kostelka are Lassiter's assistants now. Joe Rolfe White is the assistant D.A. in Morehouse Parish.

The trade school property in West Monroe will be returned by title to the school board under a bill to be offered by the Ouachita delegation. The trade school is building new facilities.

Lassiter said the property would be used by West Monroe High School and Junior High School.

The fiscal session begins Monday at noon.

HINTS FROM HELOISE

Two Step Method To Remove Washer Film

By HELOISE CRUSE

Dear Heloise:

I'm so proud of my dishwasher, but it seems to have accumulated a film all over the inside, and some of my dishes and glasses look foggy too.

Is there anything I can do to remove this film?

Kate J.

There is something you can do. However, before you begin, read this carefully. This is a TWO-STEP method.

First, put your glasses and porcelain china in the dishwasher, but DON'T put any silver, aluminum or brass, etc., in the dishwasher when this method is used. Only china and glass.

Then, put one cup of bleach in bowl in the bottom of your washer. Run through wash cycle only, do NOT dry.

Fill the bowl again with one cup of vinegar and let run through the entire cycle again.

This will remove all film from dishes and the tiny crevices of your dishwasher.

Just one more thing, Kate, DON'T try to speed up this method by combining the bleach and vinegar in one step. Take the time to do it right. It's worth it.

Heloise

Dear Heloise:

The best towel I have ever found to use on a baby is a cotton - knit fitted crib sheet.

The sheet is much larger than the usual baby towel, and I am still using it to dry my two-year-old after her bath.

They cost no more than a baby's towel and are twice as useful as you can wrap the baby in it and still have lots of towel left for drying.

Lori

Dear Heloise:

I pencil the numerals "one", "two", "three", "four", in on the corners of my mattress.

Now, no matter when I turn the mattress, I always put the next consecutive number where my head goes.

Distributes the wear on the mattress without trying to remember.

Lela G.

Dear Heloise:

I put colorless nail polish on my metal watch bracelet band (on both front and back) and find that there are no more black stains caused from the band on my wrist.

Mrs. A. Watts

Dear Gals:

You know that little bit of leftover cream gravy you have when you make chicken-fried steak or fry that chicken?

Never throw it away.

Even if it's a dab, put it in a jelly jar or glass and put it in your refrigerator.

When you put that cold gravy into a glass or jelly jar, add about one inch of water on top of the gravy. This will keep the leftover gravy from getting hard on the top, and all you have to do us take a fork and mix it up to reheat.

Next day, mix it thoroughly and reheat it in a pan.

Hard - boil an egg and chop it up into this good leftover gravy you have and serve it on a piece of toast!

You still get the egg, the steak or chicken flavor . . . and all the vitamins. 'Tis nice for you gals to eat a hot lunch. You need it.

Heloise

Dear Heloise:

The idea of using the pocket of dungarees for patching was a good one. However, people with large families have loads of blue jeans, and the worn out ones always have a good piece of material on the back of the legs . . . from below the seat down to the bottom of the leg.

Cut this piece from the old dungarees and keep a roll of it around for patching the later ones when they get to that stage.

Included in the three events will be novice accuracy, scheduled for jumpers who have between one and 25 free falls; senior accuracy, for jumpers with more than 25 free falls, and a three-man baton pass, for three jumpers with over 25 free falls.

Parachuters in the novice accuracy event will jump from 3,000 feet with a free fall delay of one to five seconds and will be judged on target accuracy. Senior accuracy jumpers will jump from 5,500 feet with a 20-second delay, in which they will go through two 360-degree turns and a back loop and will be judged on target accuracy.

The three-man baton pass event will feature jumpers leaving the aircraft at 7,200 feet for a 30-second free fall, in which time they will pass a 16-inch baton among themselves as many times as possible. The accuracy competitors will jump twice for an average score.

In order for jumpers to score in the accuracy events, they will land within three yards of the five-inch disc target to gain points. The baton pass teams will have to make at least two passes to score because of heavy competition, Baldwin said.

Judging the events will be Lee Walker of the Texarkana Parachute Club and Hugh Sutton of the Tech teaching staff, assistant.

After completion of the competition, parachuting will continue for entertainment.

Prizes for the events will include trophies and parachute gift certificates for the top two winners of each division.

Admission will be $1 for adults and 50 cents for children, the proceeds from which will be used to send the Tech team to a national parachute meet in June. Advance tickets will be sold Friday in the Tech Student Center.

Tech team members participating in the event will be as follows:

Novice accuracy — Richard Helmich of Minden, Richard Barron of Farmerville, Robert McMurrian of Farmerville, Jim Fuller of Hosston and Marshall Tilley of Haughton; senior accuracy — L. M. Quin of Greensburg, Jim Anders of Leesville, Red Auttonberry of West Monroe, Mike Harnett of Winnfield and Baldwin.

Harnett, Anders and Baldwin will represent Tech in the baton pass competition.

8 Girl Scouts To Pitch Tents In Park Today

Eight senior girl scouts of the Silver Waters Girl Scout Council who will attend National Girl Scout Roundup in Farragut, Idaho, in July will pitch tents in Forsythe Park from 10 a.m. to 12 noon today.

The public is invited to watch the girls in today's trial run. At the national roundup, the girls are allowed an hour to set up their living area. Some of these girls can pitch a tent in three minutes.

Girls from the Silver Waters Council who will attend the roundup are Marianne Salisbury, patrol leader; Kyle Gregory, assistant patrol leader; Janet Brown, Johnette Edwards, Gay Gannaway, Barbara Kurtz, Becky Mann and Kaki Stone. Mrs. John Salisburg is the roundup coordinator.

Olin Mathieson of West Monroe and International Paper Company of Bastrop are helping these girls with their demonstration to be presented at the roundup. They will demonstrate the process of paper making to represent the paper industry in northeast Louisiana.

About 9,000 senior girl scouts, 15 to 17 years of age, from every state in the nation, 150 girl guides from 45 countries and a staff of 2,000 adults will attend the roundup July 15-28. Staff members attending from the Silver Waters Council will be Mrs. Norman Huckabee, Monroe, and Mrs. Cortlandt McCoy, West Monroe.

Ellender Warns

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Sen. Allen J. Ellender, D-La., Friday warned of impending danger for rice growers if the administration cuts back rice acreage without increasing parity payments.

"It looks very much like this will happen despite my efforts to prevent it," Ellender told members of the Rice Millers' Association.

Ellender, who heads the Senate Agriculture Committee, said he has been working to get the same consideration for rice, peanut, tobacco, and sugar cane producers that corn and wheat growers enjoy.

But, he said, he hasn't gotten any results.

No Peace Moves

LBJ Signs Bill To Aid Viet Nam

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson signed a $700-million Viet Nam war fund bill Friday saying he has waited in vain for some sign or signal that the Reds are willing to talk peace.

Johnson said the money will be used to buy the weapons "to finish the job."

"I wish it were possible to convince others with words of what we now find it necessary to say with guns and planes," he said.

The President's statement was issued as he signed the appropriation measure in a White House ceremony just three days after he asked Congress for the funds, and exactly one month after he proposed "unconditional discussions" for a peaceful settlement of the Viet Nam war.

"This money will be spent for arms — for weapons of war — for helicopters and ammunition and planes," he said. "These we use not because we want war but because the aggressors have made them necessary."

"We will lay aside these weapons when peace comes — and we hope it comes swiftly. But that is in the hands of others besides ourselves. For months we have waited for a sign — a signal — a whisper — that our offer of unconditional discussions has fallen on receptive ears," Johnson said. "But not a sound has been heard.

"Not a signal has been sighted.

"Still we hope for a response. Still we are anxious for peace."

On April 7, Johnson said in a speech at Baltimore, Md., that ways to peace may lie through "discussion or negotiation with the governments concerned" and "we remain ready — with this purpose — for unconditional discussions."

He coupled with this an offer of a billion dollars for Southeast Asian economic development.

Last Tuesday, Johnson asked Congress to uphold his hand by voting quickly and overwhelmingly for a special $700-million appropriation to meet mountaing military costs in Viet Nam.

He told newsmen the Viet Nam fighting is "just something we've got and I don't know how to find the answer. I've tried everything I can."

German Official Reported To Be Princess' Suitor

THE HAGUE, Netherlands (AP) — Holland's future queen, Crown Princess Beatrix, officially was linked romantically Friday with a West German diplomat of medium rank.

But no moves have been made yet to formalize this into a royal engagement and subsequent wedding.

The close friendship of Beatrix, 27, with Klaus von Amsberg, 38, was revealed by surprise pictures showing them walking in the woods — with their hands intertwined — at Beatrix' private palace of Drakesteyn.

Identification of the "very good friend," as he is officially referred to, was disclosed Friday by the Dutch press and confirmed by the royal court and the government.

Von Amsberg, of minor German nobility, is an official of the West German Foreign Ministry where he is handling economic relations with African countries. He was quoted as saying he was a very good friend of the crown princess but laughed off wedding rumors, leaving it to Beatrix to answer questions.

Beatrix kept silent in London on Thursday and again Friday, after she returned to her own country.

Beatrix and Von Amsberg have known each other for about six months, friends said.

Dutch newspapers reported they have met six times, and last February spent a skiing vacation in Switzerland. They also were reported to have met at official functions.

Keep Trash Out

McKeithen Urges Negro Leadership

BATON ROUGE (AP)—Gov. John McKeithen Friday urged Louisiana Negroes to take "their rightful role" of community leadership to keep out what he called trash.

He also told his news conference that Robert Shelton, imperial wizard of the United Klans of America, has no business in Louisiana.

"We don't need him here," the governor said.

If Louisiana can get Shelton and Negroes James Farmer, national director of the Congress of Racial Equality, and comedian Dick Gregory to stay away, he said, racial troubles can be solved.

"Unless local colored leadership takes over," McKeithen said, "We can expect that kind of trash in here."

If local Negro leaders have grievances, he said, "come to me with them — or I'll go to them."

McKeithen had been questioned about Shelton's suggestion in an Alexandria speech that perhaps Alabama Gov. George Wallace would run for governor in Louisiana if the federal voting rights bill should pass.

McKeithen said he didn't think Wallace would be interested in running for governor in Louisiana.

McKeithen said his proposed bond program may go as high as $135 million. Latest plans he said, were for a $100 million issue for highway construction and $35 million for capital construction.

The latter figure was up from $25 million, he said, because new needs kept coming up. He indicated the latest concern was for major repair funds. Needs for major repairs have been listed at $10 million.

McKeithen said a three-man arbitration committee working with city officials and Negro leaders in Bogalusa did not represent him.

They went there as volunteers he said, but "I appreciate what these men are trying to do."

As to any withdrawal, he said, the only way this could be accomplished would be for them to quit of their own accord or to have the mayor and Negro groups reject their efforts.

"That has not been done," he said.

"I have been representing myself in Bogalusa every day," McKeithen said, adding he talks on the telephone with Bogalusa people three or four times a day.

McKeithen said he had received a requested report from agencies under his executive department on the number of attorneys and public relations personnel on the payroll.

Kennedy Solons Going To Europe With JFK Widow

LONDON (UPI) — Sens. Robert and Edward Kennedy will accompany Mrs. John F. Kennedy and her children to England next week for the inauguration of Britain's National Kennedy Memorial, it was announced Friday.

Queen Elizabeth, accompanied by Prince Philip, is to inaugurate the memorial to the late President Kennedy on May 14 at historic Runnymede, where the Magna Carta setting down the rights of free men was signed in 1215 by King John.

Lord Harlech, former British ambassador to Washington and chairman of the Kennedy Memorial Trust, announced at a news conference that the late President's two brothers are coming.

The Queen has invited Mrs. Kennedy and her children, Caroline, 7, and John, 4, to tea after the ceremony at Windsor Castle, which is near Runnymede.

Defense Division Hails Coverage Of Latin Unrest

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Defense Department on Friday saluted the courage of U.S. newsmen who are covering the fighting in the Dominican Republic and expressed regret that two of them had been accidentally wounded by U.S. Marines.

Arthur Sylvester, assistant secretary for public affairs, said in a statement "we are all deeply concerned" over the shooting in Santo Domingo of reporter Alvin B. Burt and cameraman Douglas E. Kennedy of the Miami Herald.

"These men were wounded," Sylvester said, "while returning to the U.S. lines from the rebel-held section of the city.

"They and all members of the American press in the Dominican Republic have repeatedly risked their lives in the effort to report fully to the people of the world all the facets of the political and military situation in Santo Domingo in the highest tradition of American journalism.

SBA Official To Visit Monroe On Wednesday

Post Office and Federal Court Building from 8:00 A.M. to 4:00 P.M. to confer with anyone interested in the services of this Government Agency.

"This is a continuance of the policy of the Small Business Administration to make its services more convenient to the small businessmen and the Banks in the Monroe area," Molony said.

Molony also said, "it would be helpful if inquirers would bring with them at the time of the interview a recent balance sheet and profit and loss statement for the past three years."

"It is planned that a representative of SBA will visit Monroe monthly," Molony said.
